HURRICANE PERILS EAST COAST

Virginia Capes In Direct Path Of Severe Storm

Believe Storm Is Headed Northward Along Atlantic Coast

MUCH DAMAGE IS ALREADY DONE

Rescue Workers Are Being Imobilized For Work In Coast Areas

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

Like the breath of the furies, roaring and twisting at a speed of 75 miles an hour and upwards, hurricane winds early today were lashing the east coast, from the Carolinas to the Virginia Capes, threatening heavy loss of life and extensive property damage.

Meteorologists in the south and in Washington predicted the storm would be one of the most severe disturbances of recent years.

Accompanying the high winds were rising waves and mounting tides which sent virtually every ship in coastal waters scurrying to cover and tied up several liners in Atlantic ports.

With hurricane warnings broadcast as far north as Nantucket, Mass., high winds struck the New Jersey coast early today. Small craft along the coast rushed for safe anchorage.

Headed Northward

In the last advisory available from the Washington weather bureau the tropical hurricane, was still headed for the Virginia capes and northward today.

There was no definite word from the weather bureau that the hurricane, with the huge diameter of more than 500 miles, was actually

PA NEWC OBSERVES

Many people have been wondering about the search lights which have been playing about in the sky during the past two nights. They are a part of the whale exhibit located at the P. and L. E. yards on the East Side. Three huge searchlights of 50,000 candle power are turned into the heavens each evening, and can be seen for many miles.

It's appleblossom time again—out of season, of course, else this wouldn't be breaking into print. It is reputably reported by a resident of Englewood avenue that yesterday she visited the woods in that vicinity and plucked a large number of fresh apple blossoms which smelled like spring itself.

Gardeners are beginning to feel apprehensive as the mercury drops during the nights, last night's low being 44 degrees. Unless an unusual cold spell hits us, however, there need be no cause for alarm. Last fall, the temperature dropped as low as 40 degrees on September 11, but no killing frosts occurred until September 30.

Central Congregation Honors Pastor On Tenth Anniversary Thursday

Members of the Central Presbyterian congregation on Thursday evening took part in a reception at the church building on the public square as a tribute to Dr. and Mrs. Charles B. Wingerd, on the occasion of the tenth anniversary of the pastorate of Dr. Wingerd in the congregation.

There was a large turnout of members, indicative of the fine relations existing between pastor and people in this congregation, and glowing testimony was given during the evening of the appreciation of the congregation for the pastor and his wife.

The reception was in the nature of a rather formal program in the main auditorium of the church, with George R. McClelland presiding throughout. In opening the program, Mr. McClelland explained the purpose of the gathering, and gave his personal tribute to the pastor and wife.

Man Who Stole More Than $6,000 From Invalid Widow, Is Object Of Search

(International News Service)

CHARLOTTE, Mich., Sept. 18.—An "odd job man" who allegedly stole more than $6,000 from a fruit jar belonging to an invalid widow today was being hunted by authorities in three states.

The sheriff's office said warrants have been issued here, Bowling Green, Ky., and Sumner county, Tenn., for Leonard Pitts, 44, father of three, accused of stealing the money from Mrs. Amelia Hampton, 55, invalid widow, at whose home he roomed.

Mrs. Hampton, who kept $7,775 in a fruit jar in her basement, told police she sent Pitts to take out $1,000 last Saturday to buy a new car. Last Wednesday she discovered the remainder of the money missing.

Police said Pitts came here six weeks ago from Bowling Green, Ky., where his estranged wife and children reside. He is a native of Sumner county, Tenn., police said.

Alice Longworth Says

(Special To The News)

CINCINNATI, Sept. 18. — Mr. Roosevelt is represented as receiving bad news from political fronts smilingly, and he is reported to have a light jest for every new evidence of the New Deal's unpopularity. The impression of gloom and discomfort given by Mr. Hoover during the dark days of his political life had much to do with creating the public impression that he was beaten, discouraged, through.

Mr. Roosevelt received his earlier setbacks with a good many expressions of bad temper and petulance, and the result was not fortunate for him or for his cause. He is now employing a technique more in keeping with the popular conception of his disposition.

No politician was ever endowed with a more valuable public smile than Mr. Roosevelt. If he can keep it functioning throughout this campaign it will be one of his greatest assets. If the constant succession of omens of public disfavor of the New Deal cause him to become cross or moody, the jig will be up in no time at all.

Garden Club Gives $1,000 To Library Fund

Announcement Of Fine Contribution Is Made This Morning

MONEY RAISED SOME YEARS AGO

Club Action Will Provide Garden Center Project In New Library

Representing the Lawrence County Garden Club, Mrs. S. De Graff Pearson announced today that the club would contribute $1,000 in cash towards the fund which is to be raised for the remodelling of the old post office for a new free public library.

The gift of the Garden Club is a handsome one and is a tangible step towards the realization of a modern public library for New Castle. With the example of the Garden Club announced it is hoped that similar action will be taken by other clubs and organizations in the city and county.

Money On Hand

The Garden Club has the money on hand ready to be turned over, Mrs. Pearson said. Some years ago the club sponsored a play which was a financial success and since that time several worth while ideas were projected for the use of the money. For various reasons all of them were abandoned and when the library drive for funds was announced it was decided that a contribution to it would be the finest use possible for the money.

Since the money was raised, about $800 in all, Mrs. Pearson has been the custodian of it. The remaining $200 has been underwrit-

KNICKERBOCKER DENIES REPORT HE WAS ARRESTED

Says No Other American Correspondent Was Under Arrest Either

(International News Service)

PARIS, Sept. 18.—In a brief telegram filed from the Spanish battlefront near Toledo, H. R. Knickerbocker, foreign correspondent of International News Service, today denied he or any other American newspaperman was arrested by rebels at Caceres.

Knickerbocker's message read:

"We were immediately received by General Franco and given passes to the front where the foreign legion is attacking along the road to Toledo.

"Remained two days at the front, where we saw a red plane burned and legionnaires approach Maqueda, keypoint to Madrid. We then returned to Burgos. No one at any time was arrested or detained."

Officers Believe Same Pair Of Bandits Robbed Volant And Cecil Banks

(International News Service)

CECIL, Pa., Sept. 18.—Hopeful of killing two birds with one stone, police in the tri-state area today intensified their search for two youthful armed bandits who held up the First National bank here and escaped with approximately $4,300 cash.

Working with cool precision, and answering the general description of another young bandit pair who 48 hours before had robbed the First National Bank at Volant, Pa., of $5,000, the holdup men herded two bank employes into the vault, shoved another into an ante room, and scooped all the money in sight.

They fled in an automobile stolen earlier from Emil Eisaman, 23, a Dormont car salesman, after they stripped him of his clothes, bound and gagged him, and left him lying naked in a field near Mosquito Hollow in Fayette township.

Lending credence to a belief the robbers had accomplices, police found the Eisaman car abandoned only a short distance out of Cecil.

It was theorized they switched cars at that point, and were driven away by one or more aides.

The bank employes, J. F. Wagner, E. J. Poudevigne and John Muscovey, had followed the fleeing bandits in another car, but lost track of them.

The search was being concentrated today on the Pittsburgh area, where it was believed the gunmen may be hiding out.

Less than a fortnight ago, three young desperadoes escaped from the Mahoning county jail at Youngstown, and authorities admitted they considered the possibility the escaped convicts and the Cecil and Volant bank robbers may be one and the same gang.

President Sits In Dismal Rain

On Platform At 300th Anniversary At Harvard This Morning

OUTDOOR PROGRAM MARRED BY RAIN

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 18.—Silk-hatted and frock-coated, President Roosevelt sat in a dismal rain this morning while his alma mater, Harvard, celebrated the 300th anniversary of its founding.

Seated around him on the platform before Appleton Memorial Chapel were delegates from 38 foreign countries and 500 official delegates from 400 American universities and colleges, their caps and gowns slowly getting soaked as the ceremonies progressed.

The president rejected a proffered umbrella and contented himself with buttoning up his coat as tight as possible.

Upon his arrival here, Mr. Roosevelt talked with the White House over a phone that was connected up with his private car and learned that Mrs. Roosevelt, ill with a touch of flu, was still confined to her bed.

To Return To White House

The executive promptly changed his plan and ordered that immediately after he delivers his speech at the afternoon ceremonies his special train be re-routed back to Washington instead of Hyde Park.

He will remain with Mrs. Roosevelt until she is able to accompany him to their family home on the

Storm Is Feared In New York City

Ships Toss Around On Churning Waters Of Harbor Like Corks

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 18—With gale-like winds whistling around its skyscrapers and whipping the placid harbor into mountainous seas on which ships tossed like corks, New York City today waited spread of the tropical hurricane blowing up from the Caribbean.

Dr. James H. Kimball of the U. S. Weather Bureau said definitely that the hurricane's scope had widened to include the New York area. He could make no prediction that the storm's worst fury would be spent before its center reached here.

Southward along the Jersey coastline—playground of the east—small craft scurried to safety, seeking anchorage in protected harbors.

NO BIDS MADE FOR GHOST TOWN

Auctioneer Fails To Sell Mining Village Near New Kensington

(International News Service)

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Sept. 18.—One of Pennsylvania's many "ghost towns" went under the hammer today—but nobody wanted it.

Thre hundred men and women residents of Kinloch, a little mining settlement near here, stood around in disconsolate groups as they heard the auctioneer offer the town for sale.

Kinloch as a whole, covering some 160 acres, was wanted by no one. Not a single bid was heard.

So the spieler started offering in dividual homes, and one of his assistants began droning off descriptions of the community dwellings.

The sale went better then, the miners putting in bids for their own homes.

Life savings were offered, in some instances, for the homes once happy and alive in busier times, but now hollow reminders that today Kinloch's industry is but a memory, and its inhabitants jobless men and women forced to look elsewhere for sustenance.

The "ghost town" died when the Valley Camp Coal company, which owned the town and everything in it, and supplied the only jobs available there, closed down for good.

Homes were bid in as low as $175 and $200—but $200 is a lot of money when it's all you have.

Fortress, With 1700 Defenders Blown Up Today

Most Appalling Mass Execution In All History Is Reported

TONS OF DYNAMITE SET OFF AT FORTRESS

Fate Of Rebel Defenders Not Immediately Learned —Fear Hundreds Burned

(BULLETIN)
International News Service Staff Correspondent

MADRID, Sept. 18.—The most apalling mass execution in history was carried out today when Spanish Loyalists blew up the massive, historic Alcazar fortress at Toledo, burying approximately 1700 rebels and their families with a deafening dynamite blast which shook territory for miles around.

Bodies of 1400 men and about 300 women and children were buried beneath the ruins of the great stone structure when the Leftists set off tons of dynamite in two underground passages beneath the Alcazar's walls.

The blast was set off precisely at 6:20 a. m., after the women insurgents had several times refused offers of safe evacuation.

Women Stay In Fort

The women stated they would rather die with their men than desert them, and the Leftists took them at their word. The dynamite was set off without further ado.

Citizens of Toledo had spent a good part of the night evacuating the city in preparation for the great explosion, the greatest blast in the history of man set off with the deliberate intention of massacre.

It was not possible immediately to determine whether all the entombed men, women and children were dead.

The great Alcazar was a ghastly wreck.

One of its great towers was blown 50 yards into the air almost whole, crumbling as it fell.

Debris rained for yards around for almost five minutes, causing

Western Penna. Safe From Storm

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 18—Western Pennsylvania is safe from the tropical hurricane now raging along the eastern seaboard, W. S. Brotzman, U. S. Meteorologist, said today, because "the wind can't get over the mountains."

At the same time, however, Brotzman said there's "nothing in the way of the cold spell now moving in from the northwest," and predicted the area would be marked by dropping temperatures the next few days.

With the football season open and the regulars in play, soon the phenoms will be fading for they've had their little day. In the practice games they dazzled, booted footballs high and wide but they're on the bench at present, trying as they can to hide. For their skill was just in practice they could run and pass and kick, but against some team of huskies they looked very very sick. So the phenoms are in hiding, and we see the old squad play, but next year it may be different, weather's seventy two today

HAMILTON BEAMS OPTIMISM

G. O. P. Chairman Foresees Victory

Says Reception Accorded Landon On Trip Augurs For Victory

WELCOMES MOVE FOR MAINE RECOUNT

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Republican national chairman John D. M. Hamilton challenged the Democrats to go ahead with their threat to demand a recount in the Maine election, hinting that recount will show an even bigger Republican vote.

"I certainly have no objection to a recount in Maine," he said.

He added there were certain things about that election he would like to have cleared up himself.

"The returns at Lewiston were held up for some reason or other," he said. "When Chicago called up Lewiston, trying to get information the morning after the election, they could learn very little."

Asks Guffey To Answer

Referring to Senator Joseph Guffey, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Democratic senatorial campaign committee, who said the recount would be asked, Hamilton said:

"I wish Senator Guffey would explain the matter of 4,000 employes at Boulder Dam, who have been off the payroll for a year. I wonder if they are going to vote these men out there. I have been hearing things.

"Also, I have heard that transient voters are being imported into Pennsylvania. Mr. Guffey being senator in that state might look into that."

Hamilton Optimistic

Hamilton appeared particularly optimistic. He said the overwhelming welcome Governor Landon received while passing through Rochester, N. Y., indicated he would easily get that 750,000 upstate majority Hamilton has been predicting for him.

"The Maine election helped the spirit all over," he said. "Michigan? Splendid. Michigan is in great shape. The Republican organization is clicking there.

"Our mail from the south is running in greater volume than it did in 1928. I think Tennessee is in great shape. There have been substantial defections from the Democrats in Virginia, North Carolina, and Florida. The Democrats had better watch those states carefully."

Asked how the funds were coming in, he said:

"Not as well as hoped for. We could use more. We are still way below the Democrats' $4,800,000,000."

CENTRAL CHURCH HONORS PASTOR ON ANNIVERSARY

Mahoningtown Presbyterian church, who acted as moderator at Central church at the time Dr. Wingerd was called; Rev. Rees T. Williams, president of the Ministerial association; Dr. W. Grant Fisher and Dr. C. H. Moore, local retired Presbyterian pastors, and Rev. P. C. Pearson of Trinity Episcopal church, one of the veteran members of the New Castle Ministerial association. All brought greetings to pastor and people of a most fitting nature.

Following the ministers, Miss Geraldine Fry, member of the congregation and president of the Lawrence County Christian Endeavor Union, expressed appreciation of the young people for Dr. and Mrs. Wingerd. Following, District Attorney M. L. Ailey spoke for the members of the congregation, and in turn presented George E. Lyon, another leader in the church. Mr. Lyon, on behalf of the congregation, called Dr. and Mrs. Wingerd to the platform and gave them a token of appreciation in the form of a purse of approximately $150

Present Playlet

In addition to the speaking program, Robert Duff led the singing, the Sunday school orchestra contributed a number of selections, and a short playlet was given by young ladies, members of the class taught by Mrs. George W. Conway. It was a humorous sketch entitled "A Day Off At the Old Ladies Home", and was most cleverly presented. An introductory outline was given by Miss Lillian Campbell, president of the class, and the following portrayed the roles: Geraldine Fry, June Campbell, Ruth Forrest, Helen McCollum, Freda Campbell and Berniece Forrest.

At the conclusion of the program, Dr. Wingerd made a brief address, expressing his appreciation of the spirit manifested in the program of the evening, and a word of complimentary appraisal of Central church and the congregation.

Later, refreshments were served in the church parlors.

Dr. Wingerd came to the New Castle congregation ten years ago from Martins Ferry, O., and his pastorate here has been a most progressive and successful one. Likewise, he and his wife are widely known throughout the city and county and are held in high esteem by all.

The committee in charge of direction of the reception last night included James A. George, president of the board of trustees; George R. McClelland, president of the session, and Mrs. Samuel White.

many casualties outside the fortress itself.

One of the Loyalist commanders, Col. Barcelo, was slightly injured, many Leftist supports were believed seriously injured also.

Loyalists Storm Fortress

Immediately after the blast, which climaxed a Loyalist siege of the fortress of more than two months, 600 Leftist militiamen and assault guards with rifles and hand grenades stormed the fortress, which previously had withstood the biggest guns the Loyalists could bring against it.

The Leftists were met by a terrible machine-gun fire from a small group of Rebels, estimated to number about 80, who had barricaded themselves in the only tower which remained of the original four.

When the Rebel machine-gun fire sputtered, Col. Barcela ordered his advancing Loyalists to retreat.

He announced he would destroy the remaining tower by shelling it with four-inch and six-inch mortars.

Some of the granite fragments, thrown yards into the air, fell upon houses in Toledo, going directly through, from roof to ground, like aerial bombs.

Some of the militiamen who stormed the Alcazar following the blast hoisted red flags upon the ruined walls.

It was not immediately possible to determine whether the Alcazar's famed underground vaults had caved in. Many Rebels were believed to have sought safety within them.

If the vaults crumbled, it would almost certainly mean all occupants except the comparative handful in the towers, were buried—either dead or alive.

Even if the Rebels should be alive, they were expected to die at the hands of Loyalists before the advancing Rebels could come to their aid.

The advancing Rebel columns have staged all-day battles for the past several days along the Santa Olalla front in a desperate effort to capture Toledo and free the beseiged cadets before the planned mass execution by dynamite could be carried out.

Yesterday the Rebels made notable advances on this drive to Toledo, and the Loyalists decided to lose no time in blowing up the great land-mark, which they had been unable to destroy with the ordinary implements of war.

VIRGINIA CAPES IN DIRECT PATH OF SEVERE STORM

diminishing in intensity, though reports from the United States coast headquarters at Norfolk indicated that the storm may now have reached its peak.

Coastal sections of Virginia and North Carolina, however, were still being lashed by high winds today, the town of Cape Henry in Virginia reporting an 80-mile-an-hour wind.

Residents at Virgina Beach, warned of the terrific force of the hurricane by gale winds which began blowing early today, were up at dawn prepared to leave before the main center of the storm arrived.

Ships In Hurricane Path

At least four vessels—the West Texas, bound for Houston; the Whipple, headed for Cuba; the British ship Ashworth, enroute to Brazil and the German vessel Karfanger, headed for New Orleans—were believed battling the most severe portion of the hurricane.

While the storm swept on toward the Virginia capes with terrific force sections of North Carolina, New Bern, Morehead City and Manteo—apparently had weathered the most severe part of the blow.

Communication lines were down to many points, including Elizabeth City, and very little information as to actual property damage or loss of life was available.

Huge waves, continued to pound the coast of North Carolina in the wake of the terrific winds. Reports from Morehead City, Cape Lookout, Fort Macon and Beaufort, N. C., indicated there had been no loss of life or severe property damage.

In the event of any serious trouble Red Cross workers, state legionnaires and United States coast guardsmen stood mobilized ready for instant action. Communications trucks from Florida were rushed into the storm-stricken area.

Property Damage.

New Bern, N. C., Sept. 18.—Cape Hatteras, which apparently bore the brunt of the wild hurricane which swept the North Carolina coast last night and early today, suffered considerable property damage but no loss of life, according to radio report received here today by Commander Paul Cronk of the coast guard cutter Pamlico.

Shifts Slightly.

Washington, Sept. 18.—Shifting slightly to the northwest, the tropical disturbance which ripped out of the Caribbean sea and struck the lower Atlantic seaboard during the night was still headed for the Virginia capes and northward up the mainland at 8 a. m. today

Coast guard headquarters reported its station in Norfolk, Va., advanced the possibility that the storm may now have spent its fury and might continue northward up the coast as a moderate storm with only strong gales instead of winds of hurricane force.

No Loss Of Life Here.

Beaufort, N. C., Sept. 18.—All villages along the North Carolina sand banks, from Portsmouth and Ocracoke to Cape Hatteras suffered considerable property damage as a tropical hurricane swept across the section last night and early today, according to coast guard officials, but so far no reports of loss of life have been received.

Only meagre reports of the damage were available, however, as the coast guard's telephone system along the outer banks was put out of commission by the force of the winds.

Ship Asks Assistance.

Washington, Sept. 18—The steamer Ida Hay Atwater, a 2,500-ton vessel, has radioed for assistance, the coast guard reported today. The ship gave her position as three miles southeast of Brandywine lighthouse in Delaware bay. She carries a crew of 30.

Another despatch to headquarters from the Cape May, N. J., station reported that at 11:15 a. m. the wind had rised to a 68-mile per hour velocity with the barometer falling steadily.

Norfolk Prepares.

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 18.—Expecting the tropical hurricane to direct its full force upon this section during the day, Adjt.-Gen. S. Waller rushed here from Richmond to have national guardsmen ready for quick mobilization if the necessity arises.

At 8 a. m. the city was being swept by a heavy downpour and a 53-mile-an-hour wind with the streets along the waterfront business section under two feet of water.

All lowlands adjacent to the city were inundated and the occupants of cottages in nearby Willoughby left for more secure buildings and homes here.

The wind's velocity jumped from 38 to 53 miles an hour within a few hours while at Cape Henry it was blowing at 70 miles an hour.

The strong gales and heavy seas have caused some slight damage to waterfront property at Cape Henry but so far the only damage here has been caused by the high water flooding business houses.

Included in the plans for the new free public library as a result of the gift, will be a garden center. Here will be found garden literature of all kinds, room for exhibits and New Castle gardeners will have access to literature bearing upon their problems.

With the announcement of the Garden Club's contribution of $1000 the drive for funds to give New Castle a real library gets under way with vigor and force. With such an example set it is hoped the citizens of New Castle will follow with other contributions to the end that the fund may be raised quickly.

Ohio Mayor Turns Off Traffic Lights On Chiseling Town

Refuses To Turn Lights Back On Until Citizens Come To Senses

(International News Service)

URBANA, O., Sept. 18.—Urbana's traffic light system is operating again. Mayor Dallas McCrery, claiming to be highly pleased over the success of his experiment to make the public "traffic and traffic light conscious" ordered the current turned on after being on the receiving end of vigorous protests for nearly 36 hours.

Asserting he was "sick and tired of people who want to be let off after they are caught violating rules—prominent people who use their influence and call their friends and relatives to bring pressure on the police department and mayor's court" Mayor McCrery ordered the traffic light system turned off.

After this drastic action McCrery notified the newspapers that he did not intend to order the lights restored until he learned whether the public wanted them and would heed them.

Hudson, presumably Sunday night.

Prof. Reginald Fink, making announcements at the tercentenary meeting, told the crowd which filled the open-air theatre that "if the rain gets worse we will move inside."

It got no worse but it already was falling in a steady fashion that had everyone soaked.

Opening the ceremony, which was colorful despite the rain, the assemblage heard by radio the tolling of the bells of Southwark Cathedral in London where John Harvard, founder of the university, was baptized.

John McElroy, sheriff of Middlesex county, called the meeting to order in conformance with the ancient custom and then followed a series of addresses.

Following delivery of the principal oration by Dr. Conant—by that time the rain had stopped—and the awarding of honorary degrees, President Roosevelt retired to the preacher's room in Memorial church for lunch.

The president was met at the train this morning by his sons, James and John, the former a graduate and the latter an undergraduate of Harvard.

Through rainswept Cambridge streets he was whisked directly to the exercises. The American Legion acted as a guard of honor for the executive.

Divisional D.A.R. Meeting At Castleton Outstanding

MRS. HARPER D. SHEPPARD
State Regent D. A. R.

Reaffirming faith of Daughters of the American Revolution in the constitution of the United States, as is done yearly by all its chapters in the national organization on Constitution Day, September 17, Mrs. Harper D. Sheppard, state regent, gave an inspirational address to representatives of 20 chapters in this district Thursday at a divisional meeting in the Castleton Hotel.

Stressing the importance of Americanism today, more than ever before in this period of unrest, the speaker brought a message for concentration of D. A. R. interest on enlisting the youth of today for their sustaining qualities to carry on in the future, work of defending the United States against all enemies.

"The youth of today will be responsible for the America of tomorrow, and it is the great desire of the national society," she said, "to bend every effort to promote their interests and train their minds to keep America safe." "Contacts of D. A. R. with the youth of today embrace many phases, and in the endeavor to carry out this great field of work, a great responsibility has been placed in D. A. R. hands."

"There are those talking to our young people in playgrounds, lectures and other un-American groups who are beginning to stray away from old American principles. As Americans, descended from the patriots, the Daughters stand for America and her unalterable constitution," and it is the hope that this tsand may be carried forward through the younger generation in the organization of junior groups all over the country.

Mrs. Sheppard stated that three pieces of writing have been produced in the western hemisphere which are especially notable; The Declaration of Independence, written by Thomas Jefferson; the Constitution of the United States of 1787, and Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. She likened the first to the Book of Genesis, the second to the Ten Commandments and the Gettysburg speech to the New Testament as a rededication of faith.

"Of these," she said, "the constitution is the most important, having guided us through a period of 149 years."

The Daughters are interested in a good citizenship pilgrimage, founded to interest student bodies of senior high schools with the object of moulding staunch American citizens among high school girls.

D. A. R. is backing a student loan fund and isolated mountain schools. And now that it has enlarged this scope of work in organization of the younger element, a privilege is being given to all children of the nation and those of foreign born parents, not eligible to D. A. R. membership, to have a chance to be enrolled and trained in preparation for intelligent and unselfish participation in duties of citizenship; to understand the constitution of the United States so that they will be more able to support that which is the framework of our nation; to learn to have greater respect for our flag and to be prepared to defend it at all times.

Previous to her address, the state regent introduced Attorney E. F. G. Harper, past president of the Sons of the American Revolution, and a national trustee of the S. A. R. organization, who reiterated several of the above points in defense of the constitution. Quoting Gladstone, he said, "The constitution is the greatest human document ever written by hand of man." He referred to its being used as a football in the past few months, and made an emphatic plea for its defense at all times.

Lawrence chapter was the hostess group for the day's meeting, the regent, Mrs. Harold R. McCulloch, extending the welcoming greeting. To her and a very efficient committee, Mrs. Sheppard expressed deep appreciation for the splendid meeting conducted yesterday in the neighborhood of 150 representatives of the various chapters being present).

Committee members were Miss Jennie L. Morgan, general chairman; Mrs. J. O. Woods, reservations; Mrs. Irvine A. Balph, registration; Miss Jane A. Love, tickets; and other members of the local chapter who willingly cooperated to make the event outstanding.

Officers receiving with Mrs. McCulloch were Mrs. F. G. Simonton, Mrs. C. R. Balph, Miss Viola Wallace, Miss Gevien Stevenson, Mrs. Wyatt R. Campbell, Mrs. W. W. Campbell, Miss Sara Wallace, Miss Alma Locke.

Two national officers were present, Mrs. H. K. Daugherty, Grove City, national chairman of radio; Mrs. Joseph G. Forney, Lancaster, national chairman student loan fund, and state chairman of approved schools; a member of the national committee in charge of promoting junior membership, Mrs. John E. Nelson, regent Pittsburgh chapter.

Hawkey, Tidioute, state historian; Mrs. Charles Reppert, Pittsburgh, state chairman radio; Mrs. Maurice Smiley, Pittsburgh, state chairman junior American citizens; Mrs. H. C. McEldowney, Pittsburgh, state corresponding secretary.

Applegate, Pittsburgh; General Richard Butler, Mrs. B. R. Williams, Butler, 8; Kittanning, Mrs. George K. Peecook, Kittanning, 4.

Carringer, Tionesta, 2 ex-regents; Venango, Mrs. Charles Lamberton, Franklin, 5; Yorktown, Mrs. W. C. Langston, York.

In addition, there was one representative in attendance from San Fernando chapter, Van Nuys, Cal., Mrs. Harry Dunlap, formerly of New Castle. Among the visitors were Mrs. Ralph Albright, Chicago, the house guest of Mrs. Fred L. Rentz; Mrs. Donald Stewart, of Independence, Kan., guest of Mrs. H. K. Daugherty, Grove City; Mrs. W. L. Davidson, Mrs. Thomas Ashcom, New Wilmington. The News was represented by Mrs. J. A. Edgar.

Initiating the morning session at 10 o'clock, there was a procession of national, state and chapter flags carried by four pages dressed in white with blue and gold capes and caps to match. These girls were Helene Edgar, Betty Reed, Phyllis Woodworth and Violet Simonton.

After the meeting was called to order by the state regent, the invocation was given by Mrs. F. E. Sowersby, there was the pledge of allegiance to the flag, and the American creed by Mrs. E. J. Blanning, followed by "The Star Spangled Banner."

For luncheon at 12:30, Lawrence chapter members acted as hostesses at each table. At 2 o'clock the group again assembled in the ballroom for reports of national and state officers, and state chairmen.

Exceptionally fine music was furnished by Monas Harlan, talented young tenor of this community, who sang a group of two songs, and responded with an encore. Miss Sewell, of Westminster College, was his accompanist, and Mrs. W. H. Luikart played for assembly singing of "America," which concluded the day's activities.

Following adjournment, many of the women heard the very excellent talk given by Robert B. McKinley, recently returned from Spain, where he was caught in the revolution.

THE SMALL TOWN SURVIVES

LOVERS of small towns—and a large proportion of the dwellers in all cities came from small towns of which they presumably cherish sentimental memories—will be interested in the findings of Dr. C. Woody Thompson, director of Business and Industry Surveys for the Iowa State Planning Board. He says that, despite the mobility afforded by motor vehicles, the small town as an institution is not fated to be swept away. "It continues to have a very important place in our social and economic life," he adds, "though, of course, the automobile has changed it markedly from the small town of forty years ago." His findings, based on a study of trading practices of rural and urban populations in the entire State of Iowa, showed that the small town is no longer the shopping center for nearby rural folk or its own inhabitants for articles classed as "shopping goods," and that for such articles as clothing and shoes a large adjacent town ordinarily controls most of the trade of the small town and the surrounding open country. Forty per cent of the open country trading for shopping goods is controlled by the fifteen largest towns in Iowa. From what source, then, can the small town draw the lifeblood which will enable it to survive? From continued catering to "service station" aspects of trading, answers Dr. Thompson, who goes on to explain what he means by this term:

> Almost every one of the 800 incorporated communities of Iowa controls its own inhabitants and the farmers of the surrounding countryside for the purchase of such things as groceries and similar convenience goods. It likewise plays a part equal to the largest community in the sale of lumber and cement. Apparently things which are frequently purchased, such as groceries, will continue to be bought indefinitely in the nearest town. Bulky commodities, such as lumber and cement, will likewise be purchased in the nearest town because of the mounting cost of transportation with increasing distance. While the general store may continue for years to come, it seems reasonable to conclude that the quantity of sales of things where styles and selection are important will ever be on the decline. The radio and the automobile have made rural people as style conscious as are the people of the larger cities. The success of the small town in selling farm machinery depends essentially upon the dealer, since an enterprising dealer in even the smallest hamlet can develop a high-class service organization.

THE LAST STRAWS OF SUMMER

While straw votes were never more flourishing, straw hats are rapidly being touched by the blight of age-old custom rather than by the weather. It is still as true as in Shakespeare's day that "the fashion wears out more apparel than the man." It's a good thing it does. For masculinity and especially husbands, as many wives will testify, are prone to cling affectionately to articles of apparel that have long outlived their usefulness.

If it weren't for fashion's dictates regarding the proper raiment for the recurring seasons we should probably see some conservative citizens strolling down Washington street on Thanksgiving Day in their last summer's suits and straw hats.

The day of fate for straw hats in this vicinity was September 15. Some will linger until they resemble the last rose of summer. But a short time should witness the swapping of most straws for felts and derbies whatever the temperature of the early autumn days.

A SUMMER OF BUSY TRAVEL

Long before the annual travel statistics for 1936 are published next year, it can be stated without risk of error that the public has been on the go in such a general way that all transportation methods have registered increases in volume.

Stimulated by lower rates, both rail and bus travel are recording gains; steamship companies have noted a marked rise; the air lines have written a new high record for passengers carried; and gasoline sales comparisons indicate a gain in private travel on the highways.

In Pennsylvania, the total gasoline sales record for the first six months of 1935 was 483,150,407 gallons, and it rose to 544,586,028 this year, a gain of 61,705,621 gallons. The increase in New York for the first half of the year was 31,471,554, to reach a total of 755,111,377 gallons.

When sharp rises in rail travel were reported after the new rates on Eastern roads went into effect in June, records of other transportation methods were scanned with the expectation that a drop would appear here and there, indicating a diversion from other lines of travel back to the rails. There were some items so noted early in the new rail rate experiment, but later reports seem to indicate all transportation facilities, including private vehicles, are being used at an increasing rate.

AND STILL WE WALK

Fears that the mechanical cotton picker will displace manual workers, that synthetic rubber will ruin an industry and that we soon shall be without power for motor vehicles may have no better foundation than one expressed several years ago that increased use of the motor car would result in loss of tone by muscles of the foot and make us a race of cripples. So many variables are likely to be overlooked, and man's easy adaptability to new environment forgotten. Remembrance of the belief that human feet would fall into innocuous desuetude is enlivened by a paper presented at a chiropodists' convention in New York.

The figures are surprising. The average person, it was asserted, takes 18,098 steps a day, or seven and one-half miles. Those taken by a housewife in a year of tasks would carry her from the Atlantic to the Pacific. A child at play travels about 15 miles a day on his pedal extremities, while a farmer plowing is in danger of growing a crop of corns, as well as one of corn, stepping off more than 25 miles daily. The estimate that a railroad conductor, on a run from Boston to Cleveland, walked seven miles while punching "with care in the presence of the passenjare," must have been made since the increase in travel by train. A letter carrier ofter covers 22 miles, and a policeman 18, in his daily rounds. The chorus girl, alas, averages only four and one-half miles a day, and she is the one most likely to suffer from fallen arches.

Chiropodists who expected that the advent of the motor car would make their chief tasks the restoration of muscular tone and correction of fallen arches doubtless will find it just as profitable to care for corns and bunions of those predestined to walk through this vale of aching feet.

"I OWE EVERYTHING TO MY WIFE"

I NEVER believe a man when he says that all he is, has, will be, or will ever have he owes to his wife.

Don't believe any woman believes him either....Of course, it may give her a little lift of pride or self-satisfaction, but she knows it isn't true.

It's my idea that the man who is made by his wife isn't a first-rate job....She may have done an excellent bit of assembling, but HE should have done it for himself.

Yes, I know of young fellows who rattled around here and there and never amounted to much until they were married. And then settled down and worked hard and saved their money and got somewhere in the world....But ninety nine times in a hundred time would have taken care of that reckless nonesense and any stable marriage to any half-way intelligent woman should have accomplished the same end.

Also I have heard of alcoholics who were moved to change their habits by a good woman's insistence ....And, again, I think most of the credit goes to time and lost thirst or perhaps a man who was drinking to forget finally forgot what he was trying to forget and stopped drinking.

But why do I believe that few women want their husbands going around boasting that they owe everything they are to the Little Women?

Well, I know there are some women who enjoy such a feeling of power, but it seems to me that any normal woman wants her husband to stand on his own feet. She wants him solid and strong with brains and initiative. Prefers a ready-made man to a home-made job. Would rather point with pride to her wisdom in picking out a good man rather than to her ingenuity in making the best of a mistake in judgment.

If I'm wrong I don't know much about human nature....But I never said I did.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

TO FARM OR NOT TO FARM

In 1925 Mussolini determined that Italy could produce the food which she used; could produce everything for the life of Italy, if possible. He determined that Italy could either raise the wheat necessary for its consumption or go without wheat and placed the tariff upon wheat so high that wheat sold that year and the following in the land for the equivalent of $2.50 a bushel.

The critics of this remarkable man said, "Impossible!" just as they said it was impossible for Italian troops to invade and capture Addis Ababa. Mussolini has done it and Italy is today exporting wheat. Think of it!

This Nation is raising barely enough wheat to supply its needs. Although this year some of the Western farmers, breaking away from the A. A. A. have determined to stand upon their own feet and raise as much wheat as they please. It may develop that the 1936 wheat crop in the United States will be large enough so that there will be an exportable surplus. The A. A. A. has made Canada, Australia and the Argentine the wheat export countries. It has almost destroyed the cotton export business and handed it over to Brazil.

Are the people of this Nation going to allow this thing to continue for another four years?

RURALS LIVE LONGER

Life in the country may be slightly slower than life in the city but statistics prove that it lasts longer. New life expectancy tables compiled by a large, life insurance company show that a white male baby destined to spend its life in the rural sections of the country may expect to live to an age of 62.09 years. If the same male baby spends its life in the city then it can look forward to only 56.73 years of living. The tables likewise show that white women dwelling in rural sections also live longer than their city sisters. Life expectancy at birth for females in the urban centers is 61.05 years while for those in the rural sections it is 65.09.

DEAR Miss Markel—At a church wedding, is it necessary to have a page when the bride has a train on her dress? Should the bride wear her wedding dress and veil during the reception or change as soon as she returns from the church? M. M.

Answer—Whether the bride has a page depends upon her own desires. It is not at all necessary. In fact, most brides do not have pages or train-bearers.

The bride should wear her wedding dress and veil during the entire reception, or until she is ready to leave for her honeymoon, when she changes to traveling clothes.

Question British Position.
France Beginning To Wonder.
Fear Poland May Blow Up Next

By LESLIE EICHEL
Central Press Staff Writer

WHILE ENGLAND frowns upon German and Italian sympathies for the Spanish rebels, France frowns upon F gland.

We read in the forthright "The Living Age" (which gathers opinions all over the world):

"While most journals regard the Italian government as the principal backer of the Spanish rebellion, the French newspaper, Lumiere, claims that the British financial oligarchy played a more powerful role in the plot, and notes that the City (London's 'Wall Street') received the news of the outbreak from Morocco 'with no surprise and much satisfaction'.

"British capital has heavy interests in Spain. British investors hold blocks of stock in railroads, mines, power plants and shipyards. Sir Basil Zaharoff and Vickers, Limited, own nearly one-third of the capital of the Sociedad Espanola de Construction Naval. British firms entirely dominate such companies as the Sevilla Waterworks company, Limited, the Compania General Canaria de Combustibles, the Tharsis Sulphur Copper Mines, Limited, and the famous Rio Tinto Copper Mines, Limited, one of the largest copper mines in the world. Also, Sir Henri Deterding (head of the British-owned Dutch Shell oil) has no more forgotten his rough treatment at the hands of the Spanish Oil Monopoly than he has the confiscation of his holdings in Russia. These great interests fear that as the Spanish government moves further Left they will lose the virtual extra-territorial rights which they have enjoyed for many years.

"Finally, the fact that British business exerts strong control over Portugal suggests that the 'City' was by no means indifferent to the aid which the rebels obtained from this quarter.

"In this the financial powers appear to diverge sharply from the policy of the foreign office, which takes a long-range Imperial view. Several months ago The Living Age pointed out that the British had invested 11 million pounds (55 million dollars) in the fortification of the Balearic islands. In case of war between Italy and Britain, these islands might successfully challenge Mussolini's power in the Mediterranean, assist in keep the route to India clear and block Italy's way to the Atlantic. Triumph of the Fascist rebels, with their well-known connections with Italy, might prove to be a defeat for Britain. Again, as in the case of the Abyssinian war and the Rhineland reoccupation, a division of attitudes in Britain's governing class prevents her from taking decisive action one way or the other."

PORTUGAL

It must be remembered that Portugal is largely under British domination. At least, such has been the view of other nations.

And Portugal has a dictator, who forced Loyalist refugees back across the lines into the part of Spain captured by the rebels. The rebels promptly put the men to death.

This action on the part of Portugal was in contravention to international law.

POLAND

Poland is looked upon by some as the next nation to "blow up".

Its rigid rule merely has intensified the move to the two extremes—fascism and communism.

Poland, like Spain, is desperately poor. That is, so far as the average man is concerned.

Poland, however, is leaning toward France, its old ally, at the moment.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA

Czechoslovakia, also, is disturbed for a different reason. It is a nation with a good rule, a democratic rule—but with rich resources.

The Nazi-Fascist nations therefore desire to gobble it up.

Hitler's recent threats against the Soviet Union are said to be excuses for forcing a Nazi-Fascist regime, under German domination, on Czechoslovakia. Incidentally, Hungary and Poland desire slices of this republic.

IN THE WAY

There's a brewing and a stewing in the kitchen once again!
There's the scent of Orient spices drifting upwards to my den.
There are moments of excitement
most peculiar to the time
When the grapes are ripe for jelly and tomatoes at their prime.
Now I tip-toe down to watch them but they order me away.
Man is just a downright nuisance on a busy canning day.

I am haunted and I'm taunted by such aromatic lures
Which have captured and enraptured all the world's great epicures.
So I wander towards the kitchen, watery-mouthed to stand and gape.
At the scarlet currant juices and the purple of the grape.
But the cook is plainly nervous and the mother mutters: "Scram!
You're not wanted near the kitchen
when we're busy making jam."

To these labors come the neighbors just to learn how things are done;
Stuff is ordered from the grocer to be sent upon the run;
Enters good old gentle Bismark, best of dogs, to sniff about
But as oson as he's discovered just like me he's ordered out.
For it's now the canning season and the flustered women say
When they're making piccallilli men and dogs are in the way.

Today's Yesterdays—Sept. 18, 96 A. D.—Emperor Domitan of Rome was assassinated.

He had a presentment of a violent end, and all the rooms in which he lived were lined with polished stones that he might see all that went on behind and around him. He decreed that all his servants should be put to death if he were killed; locked himself in when he slept; had his food tasted beforehand; never ventured outside his palace; saw all his visitors one at a time and alone.

A distinguished soldier Clodianus, gained access to him by declaring he had news of a plot against the emperor's life. He did have: he plunged a knife into Domitan's heart.

Sept. 18, 1709—Samuel Johnson was born in Lichfield, England. He was to be made more famous by what was written about him by a man he evidently detested—Boswell—than by what he himself wrote, because the chief products of his pen were a dictionary full of careless and ignorant errors, and a novel Rasselas which he wrote in one week. He said: "No one but a blockhead ever wrote except for money."

Sept. 18, 1793—The cornerstone (SE) of the most famous building in the United States was laid by President George Washington. It's True—You're wrong if you believe icebergs are cold and white. Prof. Howard Barnes, McGill University, says they are hot, due to chemical changes caused by the heat glare on their surface, and they warm the water all around them. They appear white in daytime, in contrast to the surrounding water; but their natural color is jet black.

Dr. James Tufts, a 17th century chemist who became enormously rich selling patent-medicines, invented the diseases his nostrums were advertised to cure. They were hockrockle, moonpall and marthambles.

The Mississippi discharges more water than all the rivers in Europe.

J. E. Sellars, San Antonio, asks which is the longest river in the world. Mississippi-Missouri together are 4,200 miles long, alone; the Amazon, 3,800 miles; then Nile, 3,500; then the Yangtse, 3,400; then Congo, 3,000.

He also wants to know if dew rises, forms or falls. It forms by condensation of the vapor of the surrounding atmosphere.

To keep the record straight: It was a typographical error which caused a note here quoting Dr. Frank Suggs to refer to the battle of Arabella. It should have been, of course, Arbela.

Wm. Fitzsimmons, Elkton, Md., reports an It's True weather phenomenon: "In an electric storm west of Clarendon, Va., there appeared a spectacular frequency of discharges earthward. Some appeared as mere single sparks, but the majority were of repeating or of the stream type of discharge of exceptional size, appearing like ribbons of flame searing the darkness. One of these, which seemed almost to hang in the sky only a few miles away, appeared to ignite something high in its course, leaving wisps of flame which persisted momentarily detaching themselves from the stream and drifting eastward from the path of the discharge as if carried by the wind. A portion of the path of the discharge at, and below these points, was also indicated by a chain of sparks persisting momentarily after the streak had gone."

Rebels Claim Mutiny Aboard Spanish Boats

Insurgents Make Claims Of New Advances In Civil Warfare

AIR DUEL SEEN FOR FIRST TIME

By THOMAS A. LOAYZA
International News Service Staff Correspondent

MADRID, Sept. 18.—Mutiny broke out overnight aboard the remnants of the Loyalist Spanish fleet off Malaga, according to Rebel radio claims, and before the rising was quelled, 250 members of the crews were slain.

In a dramatic meeting at sea among representatives of the ships' crews as land forces drew nearer to Malaga, the men decided they had been misled by Madrid, and voted to surrender to the insurgents.

Fighting broke out when other sailors and minor officers refused to yield, but the ships, with the victorious Loyalists in command, put back into Malaga.

Gen. Francisco Franco now claims possession of Ronda, opening a clear road to Malaga, 50 miles away, while advances on the vital Toledo front and the Bay of Biscay sector were also claimed by the insurgent radios, and denied by Madrid.

With the insurgents, according to the Cadiz radio, now hammering their way in three lines past Santa Olalla and Maqueda, important junction points on the Madrid and Toledo roads, Loyalist commanders at Toledo were ready today to detonate the huge charge of dynamite placed in two tunnels under the Alcazar.

Chance To Surrender

The blast was postponed yesterday, according to Col. Luis Barcelo, to give the 1600 insurgents, including 400 women and children, a last chance to surrender.

His terms were safe conduct for the women and children, but certain death for the combatants.

Denying Rebel claims of a six-mile advance around Maqueda, the government asserted, on the contrary, that the estimated 20,000 men of Gen. Jos Asensio pressed forward three miles in a 12-hour battle, and the Rebels are still ten miles from Santa Olalla. Casualties were said to have been heavy.

Three tri-motored airplanes, escorted by pursuit planes, bombarded Maqueda and Santa Olalla, the government admitted, the latter town being badly damaged by incendiary bombs before the Rebel aircraft were driven off by seven Loyalist machines.

Disappointment was evident in the capital, nevertheless, that the "decisive victory" that Gen. Asensio had been ordered to produce has not been forthcoming, but the war office said he would "probably" open his major counter-offensive today.

At dawn today he set out in a staff car with 50 Moors afoot. I followed later in our own car down a road which is itself a no man's land, lined with fragments of trucks, armored cars, tanks, field kitchens and other victims of the enemy's relentless air and artillery bombardment.

Yells from a grove of fig trees stopped us as white artillerymen from beneath a camouflage pointed upwards. We leaped out for the fig trees and from beneath them watched two brilliantly new French airplanes coming from Madrid.

They had broad red bands on their fuselage and red wing tips. Another pair of planes flew to meet them from our direction. They had black fuselages and black wing tips.

For the first time, perhaps, since the war began, everybody lost fear of war planes and came out into the open to watch the planes fight each other.

It was, as far as I know, the first air duel of this war between equally-matched, brand-new, modern, swift red and white pursuit planes. They presumably began machine-gunning each other after they came to close range, but all we could see was graceful diving and circling, exactly as in an air circus.

'Airport Taxi' In Plane Helps Roscoe Turner

(International News Service)

DENVER—Just for use in an emergency, Col. Roscoe Turner, famous speed pilot, carries a motorized scooter with him in his big 24-passenger tri-motored transport plane.

"That's my airport taxi," he explained, demonstrating the unique device to Denver friends recently.

"The handlebars fold back and it fits nicely in the back end of a plane. If I land anywhere near a road at all I can always go to town without walking. I always carry the little sputter buggy on cross-country flights where speed is not the primary object."

The scooter has a maximum speed of 18 miles an hour, and Colonel Turner said it gives him 100 miles to a gallon of gasoline.

Truck Vibration Injures Buildings

(International News Service)

LEBANON, O., Sept. 18.—Severe damage to business district buildings caused by the vibration of heavy trucks may lead to rerouting of trucks around the central section of this city.

Albert P. Harmon, architect, reported that many buildings are being gradually shaken apart, and that in recent months extensive repairs have been necessary.

Although business men have taken no action as yet, Mayor Wadron G. Gilmour intimated the village council may act on the rerouting of vehicles soon.

CAN'T FIND OWNER OF STEAM SHOVEL

(International News Service)

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 18.—As a collector of "rare gems," John Kruzan, 71, is tops.

John, one day, saw a steam shovel behind a residence here, and decided he'd like a piece or two of it.

With a wry smile on his lips and with untold perseverance, John went at the shovel with wrench, sledge hammer and crowbar.

He hacked and labored for three hours to the amusement of curious children. He loaded some parts into a small truck, drove away and came back for another load. He hacked some more.

By this time, in addition to the children, the police became more than mildly interested.

With the steam shovel dismantled, John was rushed to headquarters.

To make matters more baffling, no one seemed to know who owned the steam shovel.

Took 14 Years To Smoke Gift Cigars

(International News Service)

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark., Sept. 18.—Fourteen years is a long time to wait, but that's how long Rodney Banister did before he smoked some gift cigars.

The gift, a present from Banister's boss, B. A. Lynch, president of the Farmers Bank and Trust Company here in 1922, was locked in a small safe.

The combination was lost. And only this week when it was discovered on an old card was the safe opened, revealing the assistant cashier's gift box.

Funny man! He doesn't hate those who never help him, but those who help him a little and then quit..

EYES

No. 3 in an educational series.

Eyes Begin to Seem Human

Probably because the snail liked to peek out of his shell to see if the coast were clear before he completely emerged, nature reversed the process she used for the eyes of the starfish. Instead of putting them in depressions, she put them at the end of tentacles. These two tentacles turn every which way, so he gets a good view in all directions. The snail is the first creature to have a cornea in his eye—a curved surface that collects more light rays than a flat surface and also protects the eye.

The human eye has a very well developed cornea. But unfortunately not one in a thousand is perfect. Most corneas have an uneven surface, instead of being perfectly smooth. However minute these imperfections, they cause distorted vision—as-tigmatism. Proper glasses counteract the imperfections and restore clear sight.

Farm Editors Greet Landon

Young Republicans Also In Topeka To Confer With Candidate

LANDON THANKS DEMOCRATIC AIDES

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

TOPEKA, Kas., Sept. 18.—While young Republicans and farm editors gathered here to confer with him, Governor Alfred M. Landon was on record today as frankly welcoming the help of independent Democrats as allies in the presidential campaign.

The Republican nominee took this step by graciously thanking former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, and former Governor Joseph B. Ely of Massachusetts, both life-long Democrats, for aiding the Republicans in the Maine campaign which ended in a smashing G. O. P. victory. Both took the stump in Maine against the New Deal.

Beyond Party Lines

Landon told them the campaign had gone "beyond party lines" and declared "if we are to enjoy once more just and efficient representative government, the American people as a whole must place the country's welfare above partisan interests."

The Young Republicans met here to promote their national drive to capture "first voters" and to bring the nation's youth into G. O. P. ranks. They were to hear an address by Landon at 2 p. m. on issues affecting the youth of America. It will be broadcast to the nation.

Thirty farm editors from Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Tennessee, Illinois, Minnesota, Michigan, Iowa, South Dakota, Nebraska and Missouri were to lunch with Landon. Senator Arthur Capper (R) of Kansas, was the host. They planned to discuss farm problems, with Landon in a listening role.

Among the ditors attending were: Graham Patterson, of Philadelphia; E. S. Bayard, of Pittsburgh; Dr. Harry E. Woolever, of Washington, D. C.; W. P. Lloyd, of Cleveland; James R. Moore, of Columbus, Ohio; Samuel R. Guard of Spencer, Ind.; C. V. Gregory and Frank D. Tomson of Chicago; G. Edwin Popkess of East St. Louis, Ill; Bert Wermuth of Detroit; A. A. Ricker and Berry H. Ackers, of St. Paul; Clarence Roberts, of Oklahoma City; S. R. McKelvie of Lincoln, Neb.; Elmer T. Peterson and Kirk Fox, of Des Moines, Ia.

Host Of Young Republicans

The city of Topeka meanwhile was over-run with Young Republicans. Fred Seaton, Kansas chairman and one of the sponsors of the conference, said 3,000 Young Republicans were in attendance. Motor caravans brought hundreds from Colorado, Nebraska, Missouri, Oklahoma, Iowa and Illinois. Young J. Kenneth Bradley, of Connecticut, national chairman, presided.

In welcoming independent Democrats to join the Republican cause against the New Deal, Landon followed the precedent set by the Republican national committee in Washington last spring. The committee adopted a resolution urging "Constitutional Democrats" to help restore representative government to the nation.

In a letter to former Senator Reed, Landon said:

"Millions of American citizens are grateful for the help you gave in the Maine campaign preceding this week's elections, and I wish to join with them in expressing appreciation.

"Not only were your speeches helpful, but more important perhaps was the personal participation of a man of your national reputation."

Civilization hasn't made us any smarter—not when we forsake the cool, comfortable back porch Sunday afternoons for the joys of a hot, crowded highway.

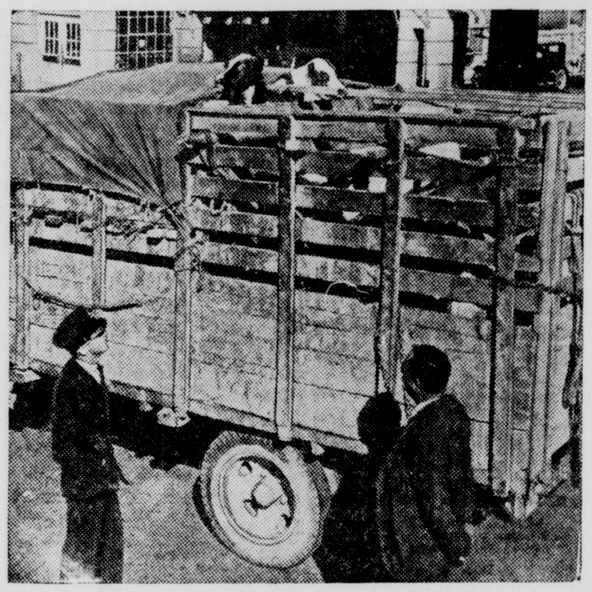
Canada Rushes Cattle To U. S.



The Roosevelt scarcity program, which caused cattle imports to jump from 74,658 head in 1933 to 364,623 in 1935, has been a boon to Canada. The Dominion has joined the other cattle raising nations of the world to rush products into the American market. While feed scarcity through destruction of oats ordered by the Roosevelt administration continues in the American midwest, plump Canadian cattle arrive at the Buffalo, N. Y., end of the Peace bridge. U. S. Customs Inspector Henry J. Kelleher, left, looks over the shipment with Jack E. Riddell of Embro, Ont., who brought in the load for market.

San Francisco Greeting Knox

G. O. P. Presidential Candidate Completes Tour Of Northwest

(International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 18—Leaders of the Republican party in California turned out today to greet Col. Frank Knox, G. O. P. vice presidential nominee, upon his arrival from the Pacific northwest on his nationwide campaign tour.

Enroute from Corvallis, Ore. where he spoke last night, to this city, where he will address another huge throng tonight, Knox planned six rear platform talks from his special train during the daylight trip through northern California.

The Republican nominee, a former rough rider and journalist, will speak upon "Republicanism and California" tonight. The talk will be broadcast at 9:15 p. m.

Knox left a blistering attack on the administration ringing in the ears of his Oregon audience. Yesterday was "constitution day" and he used that as the theme of his talk.

"A little group of colonies 149 years ago laid the foundations of the mightiest nation in world history" Knox said.

"Wrapped up in the parchment folds of the constitution is the life of the American people. Within its brief and simple words we find protection against the demagogue and the dictator, a barrier against the fanatic and the visionary, shelter from the conflagrations of revolution and absolutism.

"At no time in its long and glorious history has it served the American people so faithfully as in the last three years."

Republican Men Hear Fine Address

Duke Of Veraguas, Direct Descendant Of Columbus, Killed By Government

One of the soundest addresses heard here in years on the U. S. Constitution and the Supreme Court was delivered before the Republican Men of Pennsylvania, Thursday night, in the Castleton Hotel. Attorney Jay Buchwalter of Warren, O., a constitutional lawyer of note was the speaker.

In his address Mr. Buchwalter pointed out that out of 22,000 laws passed by congress, only about 70 had been declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court. "The decision of the Supreme Court is subjected to the will of the people" said Mr. Buchwalter. "If they think the decision is wrong, they have ample recourse through amendments to the constitution.

Dr. W. Fulton Jackson, president of the Republican Men of Pennsylvania presided. Several short addresses were made by visitors.

Landon Chuckles Over Photographs

(International News Service)

TOPEKA, Kas., Sept. 18—Governor Alfred M. Landon chuckled today over two photographs sent him by admirers.

One photograph was of a blacksmith shop near Windermere, England with signs tacked up on both sides of its door, carrying this advise, apparently to Americans:

"Go home and vote for Landon."

The other came from Williamstown, W. Va., picturing two conflicting signs erected side by side by political rivals. In order the signs read:

"Williamstown wants Roosevelt again."

"The hell we do"

ANY DIFFERENCE?

"There goes a fellow who seems to take the worst possible view of everything."

"Is he a pessimist then?"

"No, he's an amateur photographer."

League Will Hear Dr. Fred Gealy

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church held its second meeting of the year at the home of their first vice president, Miss Fern Cloak, Winter avenue, Thursday evening. The president, Jack Lower, opened the meeting, and devotionals were led by Miss Alma Wolverton.

During the business session plans were completed for the program on Sunday, Sept. 20. At this time Rev. Fred D. Gealy of Tokio, Japan, formerly a resident of Oil City, will deliver a talk to the league members. Rev. Gealy will also address the members of the graduating class of the Sunday school on the same date. This program will begin at 6:30 o'clock.

The newly appointed cabinet has planned its first social activity for the league. It will be a penny supper on October 6 and will be at the church. The cabinet will hold their October meeting directly following the supper, in the home of Miss Elizabeth Slaver, Moody avenue.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Peg Stoll. To climax the evening the members joined in a songfest, accompanied on the piano by Dr. N. A. White.

Tennyson's Ghost Walked With Nurse For Many Miles

W .an, 89, Reveals How Spirit Of Poet Kept Her Company

(International News Service)

LONDON—Tennyson's ghost walked the night the great poet died.

It walked beside the "Old Woman." The "Old Woman" was a nurse who saw the poet laureate through a desperate illness in 1888-1889, four years before he did die.

She wasn't really an old woman. She was still comparatively young when she nursed Tennyson. He called her that in jest.

Her name is Miss Emma Durham. Today, she herself an 89 year-old woman lies in a London hospital with a weak heart.

Curiously, she revealed how Tennyson's spirit appeared to her miles away from where his body lay dying to the poet's great-grandson, Julian Tennyson.

Miss Durham, from her own sick pillow told how fond she became of the great man, how she hardly left his bedside for days and nights on end.

"Nobody but me was allowed in the room. For hours he would lie silent, then suddenly say:

"Talk to me, old woman."

"He always called me old woman. "I would talk quietly of anything that came into my head. He liked to hear my voice, I think."

By September Tennyson was convalescent and could go out walking. But in spite of this, he was melancholy and depressed. Miss Durham remonstrated with him saying:

"My lord, you ought to be ashamed of yourself for grumbling that way. You ought to express gratitude for your recovery by writing a hymn.

Two weeks later as Miss Durham was lighting the candles in Tenny' son's room, he poet said:

"Will this do for you old woman?"

Miss Durham said he read "Crossing the Bar" which he had written while crossing the Solent. She was so delighted she ran from the room forgetting to light the candles.

So he recovered and she left him two years before his last illness. When he fell ill in 1892 Miss Durham was on duty in an Isle of Wight hospital off the South English coast.

Anxiously, she followed the news bulletins. She continued:

"On October 6, we heard he was sinking. That evening I went for a long walk by myself, and when I turned to go home it was dark.

"Suddenly from a little hedge at the side of the road stepped the figure of the poet dressed in a wide-awake hat and cloak he used to wear on the Downs.

"In silence he walked beside me, step by step, and somehow it seemed quite natural he should be there.

When we came to the crossroads he vanished and I went on to the hospital."

Miss Durham said she checked up. Tennyson died that night.

"I heard later he lapsed into unconsciouness at 7:30, the exact time at which his form began to walk with me on that road."

AROUND CITY HALL

It is probable that city council will give immediate consideration to the proposed improvement of the Big Run so that the flood menace on the South Side will be removed. Owners of property on the South Side suffered considerable damage during the last flood and the city spent quite a sum cleaning away debris. The city's cost will be almost $20,000, which must be found before the work will get under way. Already the city has spent money for dredging of the Big Run from the Shenango river to the Moravia street bridge.

Half of the cost of labor for resurfacing streets here has returned to the city coffers in the form of taxes, according to City Engineer Glenn R. Throop. So far the city has resurfaced Reis street, between Shaw street and Highland avenue; Wallace avenue between Highland avenue and Crawford Terrace; South Beaver street, between South and Bridge streets; South Mercer street between East Washington and Lawrence streets and Kurtz place between East Washington and Grove streets. The next street to be resurfaced will be either Lincoln avenue, part of Leasure avenue, Diamond Way or Ray street with indications pointing to the latter. Walnut street will not be resurfaced this fall because the street car company has no funds to raise the tracks.

The city treasurer, C. C. McKibben has received from the state treasurer a check for $4,569.39, covering the two percent tax paid upon premiums by foreign fire insurance companies for the year ending December 31, 1934. The money will be divided between the Volunteers organization and the Paid Firemen's benefit association.

Council during their session Thursday concurred in the recommendation of the city solicitor, William Cobau, that A. N. Young be permitted to redeem Lote 515 and 516 in section 31 and Matt Yakopovich be allowed to redeem lots 505 and 506, section 3, city survey upon the payment of taxes. The former will pay $26.52 and the latter $22.65. They were bought in several years ago by the city at a tax sale.

My New York By James Aswell

Copyright, 1936, Central Press Association

NEW YORK, Sept. 18—William Gaxton is a Broadway phenomenon of increasing wonder. A plumpish ruddy-cheeked, genial gentleman past the age most people associate with matinee idols playing romantic leads in musical comedy, he is considered a good luck omen by producers.

Everything he has appeared in for years has chalked up an immediate and resounding hit. He is certainly not a great singer. He is certainly not a great actor. And yet he can contribute a gayety, a rollicking sly quality which puts audiences in good humors and lifts them off their hands. He gets a show going.

I watched him the other day rehearsing "White Horse Inn" the quarter-million dollar musical imported from Europe after six years of box-office magic in most countries across the water. Suave, soft-spoken and quick to laughter, he kept the cast in good fettle.

When the Teutonic author of the book fell into a mild pet over interpretation of his lines, Gaxton put an arm around a ten-year old lad who was one of the principals in the scene and with an irrelevant, "Ain't he cute," put all in a good humor again.

Small, droll Jimmy Savo was originally scheduled for the Gaxton role in "White Horse Inn." This is amazing, since no two actors could be more diametrically opposed in looks, voice, temperament and technique.

Savo is one of the great pantomimists of the generation. He can be mentioned in the same breath with Chaplin. Producers of films and musicals, recognizing his talents, have sought to find the proper vehicle. This has been extremely difficult—he is deemed the hardest actor to cast on Broadway.

Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur have had their eyes on Savo for years and have searched in vain for the sort of tale that would bring out his magnificent ability to use hands, feet, eyes and head in pungent satire. They even made one film and were so dissatisfied with it they released it only here and there to meagre box-office pickings. Somehow story and Savo didn't jell.

At the moment I hear Rowland Stebbins, producer of "White Horse Inn" is on the lookout for a musical to star Savo. One of these days the right show will be found and a comic of the very first magnitude will sail out on the horizon.

And in the real of comedy, I have long thought that Buster Keaton, dogged with illness and bad luck since the advent of the talkies, should have remained one of the top flight laugh kings. He rocketed to success in the old silents but somehow audiences were distressed by the timbre and inflection of his voice.

It is interesting to know that Keaton retains his old pull with foreign audiences. For them an appropriate voice is "dubbed" into the sound track and his hilarities retain their old-time charm. One of the memorable rib-ticklers of this reporter's experience was Keaton's adventures in the assembly, of a mail-order house. The film is still getting giggles in Czechoslovakia and the Ruhr.

To Speed Work At Clenmore School

Work of repairing and remodeling the Clen-Moore school, Wilmington road, is progressing nicely. The three classrooms have been entirely finished and school is well underway.

At the present a corps of workmen is excavating a cellar under the classroom located in the rear. This room was raised two feet before the digging started. About one-third of the outside of the building has been covered with stone veneer With three additional masons scheduled to start next week this part of the project will be speeded up considerably.

The entire project is expected to be completed by January 1, it was announced.

On Court House Hill

During the past two weeks 1,234 new voters have registered at the registration bureau, according to Registration Clerk, Thomas Edmunds. This does not include those who simply changed their addresses.

An appeal from the decision of Alderman Mantz has been filed in the case of the Bell Telephone company against Jonas Kaufman, in which judgment for the plaintiff was given in the sum of $99.50. Kaufman claims that he does not owe the money, that he simply went security for another party, and that the amount he was to secure was not over ten dollars.

Wallace Potter, Washington township farmer, who was at the court house today, says that good progress is being made on the improvement of the Potter Run road, now under construction. The road connects the East Brook and Volant road with the Perry highway.

Plans are being made to raise the new flag pole on the court house grounds next week. A concrete base was recently put in and it is thought advisable to wait until it is thoroughly hardened before raising the pole. Court house officials are planning a little program when the flag is hoisted for the first time.

Juvenile court was held yesterday by Judges James A. Chambers and W. Walter Braham. The hearings are behind closed doors, the only persons being admitted being the delinquents and their parents. The delinquents make regular reports to the parole officer while they are under the jurisdiction of the court.

Death of Peter K. Soffel, former warden of the Allegheny county jail this week, recalls the thrilling story of the notorious Biddle brothers, Ed. and Jack, who were killed near Prospect on the New Castle-Butler road. The Biddle brothers were awaiting execution for killing Thomas Kahney, a grocer, during a holdup. The jail warden's wife, Katherine Soffel, became infatuated with Ed. Biddle and smuggled the brothers saws and weapons. They shot their way out, and escaped in a sleigh, taking Mrs. Soffel with them. It was a bitter cold night when they were overtaken by officers near Prospect. Both the Biddles were killed. Ed. Biddle shot Mrs. Soffel rather than see her captured. She recovered, served five years in prison and died in 1910.

To the credit of local aldermen and justices of the peace, it can be said that none of them has been accused of "fixing" drunken driving cases, which appears to have been the practice in some places. This practice is strongly condemned in a warning just issued by Judge M. A. Musmanno of Allegheny county. He says that the law requires the holding for court all defendants against whom is made out a case of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. Continuing, he says, "Squires may not be aware of the harm they are visiting upon the public when they treat lightly the matter of drunken driving. A drunken driver is a potential killer. The campaign to drive drunken drivers from the streets must be unceasing, implacable and unyielding."

Residents of the Seventh precinct of the Second ward are very much interested in securing a suitable voting place, according to Attorney Kenneth M. McLure, judge of election in that district. A survery of the district shows no place furnishing adequate facilities except the church, the school and possibly Lamoree's garage, although the latter is located on the district's boundary line. It appeads that many residents of the district believe that the church is best suited for the purpose. In support of this contention it is pointed out that it is centrally located in the district in relation to distribution of population. There are adequate facilities to house the board in a comfortable manner. In this connection it may be stated that there are three women on the board. In case of stormy weather the voters could be taken care of without having to stand out in the cold. There is also telephones and other conveniences that recommend this location.

Painting Under Old Wallpaper

(International News Service)

BOSTON—Workmen tearing paper from the walls of a room in an old Charlestown wooden residence unveiled a series of paintings, the work of some master brushman a century or more ago.

Despite years of hiding beneath several layers of wall paper, the paintings were in excellent condition. One painting which covered an entire wall depicted a harbor and island scene, the inspiration presumably obtained by the painter from Boston harbor in the distance. The others contained similar views.

FIRST AIR MAIL WAS CARRIED IN BALLOON IN 1859

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind.— Air mail is not a recent innovation—it's old stuff, according to investigators for the Indiana Works Progress Administration's guide book activities.

Seventy seven years ago the world's first air mail was carried from Lafayette to Crawfordsville, a distance of 26 miles.

The first air mail was borne by a balloon piloted by John Wise. The plan to carry mail in his balloon was made in connection with an ascension of Aug. 16, 1859. The ascent failed but was made on the following day. The Lafayette postmaster advertised that the Jupiter, Wise's balloon would take the mail.

The balloon bearing the mail, hovered near Lafayette for more than one hour because of lack of wind and then drifted away towards evening. Wise placed the mail in a sheet and dropped it overboard. Then he let the balloon descend and the balloon and the mail bag landed 50 feet apart near Crawfordsville.

SEE BIG CHANGE IN MAKE-UP OF NEXT SENATE

One Tenth Is Already Out

Election Results In November Will Probably Make More Changes

DEATH HAS TAKEN NOTICEABLE TOLL

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—A sharp change in the lineup of the next senate, regardless of the November election, was certain today with almost one-tenth of the membership already removed by death, defeat or retirement.

With 35 senatorial contests to be decided in November, a strong possibility existed that the new senate may differ radically from that which has wielded legislative power for the past two years.

Defeat of the veteran, multi-millionaire Senator James Couzens, of Michigan, brought into bold relief the changes already wrought and the possibility of a further turnover.

Conclusion of the series of nominating primaries showed also a turnover in the house of representatives of over 10 percent due to death, retirement or defeat.

Death Takes Toll

Death removed such senate figures as Senators Fletcher and Trammell, of Florida, Murphy of Iowa, Schall of Minnesota, Cutting of New Mexico and the explosive Huey (Kingfish) Long, of Louisiana. The successors of four of them will retire in January.

Retiring senators included: Mrs. Rose Long, widow of Huey Long; Elmer Benson (F-L) of Minnesota; Marcus A. Coolidge (D) of Massachusetts; Thomas F. Gore (D) of Oklahoma; Keyes (R) of New Hampshire and Costigan (D) of Colorado.

The death of Schall and the primary defeat of Gore removed both blind members of the senate. But one blind member of the house, Rep. Dunn of Pennsylvania, has a chance to return to congress in November.

Senator Daniel Hastings, popular Delaware Republican, sought to retire from the senate, but was drafted for renomination. He may yet decide to carry out his expressed desire to return to the practice of law.

Face Contests

Many veteran members of the senate face contests in the November election. Thy include William E. Borah (R) of Idaho; the Republican floor leader, McNary of Oregon; Dickinson (R) of Iowa; Norris (R) of Nebraska; and Capper (R) of Kansas.

Norris, who is supporting the Roosevelt administration is seeking reelection as an Independent instead of entering the Republican primary. While the administration plans to back Norris instead of the Democratic-Townsend candidate, Norris' Republican foes wish to defeat him with former Rep. Simmons, a World war veteran.

Borah, dean of the senate, faces a battle with Governor Ross of Idaho.

With the retirement of Mrs. Long, the senate will have but one woman member, Mrs. Hattie Caraway of Arkansas.

Work On Bridge Nearly Finished

Will Start On Removal Of Obstruction Early Next Week

It was learned today that workmen on the West Washington street bridge will start on either Monday or Tuesday of next week, to remove the obstruction from the center of the bridge.

For the past several weeks work has been going on under the bridge, new steel being added and joints welded to reinforce the structure sufficiently to hold the added weight of the new pavement.

As soon as the steel railing has been removed from the bridge forms will be laid, and an amesite surface placed on the bridge. This will require probably an additional week's work before the bridge can be opened for traffic. It will not be necessary to close the bridge to traffic at any time during these tasks, however.

RASHID LEAVES FOR NEW YORK

For the next few days Samuel J. Rashid, of this city will be engaged in releasing newly imported rugs from the United States customs, in New York. Mr. Rashid departed last evening.

During his brief stay in New York Mr. Rashid will also take part in a conference relative to the Persian rug monopoly created abroad. Mr. Rashid is one of the youngest members of the Rashid family, for the past 40 years recognized as authorities on Oriental rugs.

Brothers Re-united After 45 Years

SHARON, Pa., Sept. 18—C. B. Allen, of this city, and W. G. Allen, of Carthage, Mo., brothers, met here yesterday for the first time in 45 years.

Both natives of Leesburg, the brothers parted in that community when C. B. Allen was 24, and W. G. Allen was 29. The former now is 69 and his brother from Missouri 74.

A year ago, Mrs. Claude Taylor, daughter of W. G. Allen, wrote to Mrs. C. B. Allen in Sharon and learned that her father's younger brother was still alive and a resident of Mercer county. Plans to meet followed. The Allens visited scences of their boyhood at Leesburg this week.

Union High School News

SPONSORED BY THE ART CLUB

Union High School is a scene of activity as the students and faculty again resume the responsibilities of school life. Tuesday, September 8, marked the opening of the school term with the enrollment of the various grades of follows:

7th grade— 82.
8th grade— 75.
9th grade—157.
10th grade— 96.
11th grade— 83.
12th grade— 73.

The total number of students in the high school is 566.

The third and fourth grades are stationed at the main building of Union Township this year having abandoned a room at the White school building. Miss Elizabeth Wallace is the fourth grade teacher.

Three new members have been added to the faculty of the high school. They are: Robert Cowher, C. Hofmeister and J. Thompson. We extend our welcome to them.

The various clubs were organized on Tuesday, September 15. The Girl Reserve Club invited all the girls in the high school to attend their first meeting. The meeting led by the new officers was very enjoyable consisting of two plays. The first play written by Ruth Buchanan, "The Very Nicest Club," was presented by Mary Spittle, Dorothy Barnsley and Betty Glasser. The second play "The Thoughtful Girls" was written by Dorothy Critchlow was presented by the following girls: Helen Cox, Katherine Todd and Marian Allen.

The Art Club and the Hi-Y club also organized, the Art Club having a larger membership than previous years, the number of students joining being 72.

An Operetta, "Windmills of Holland" is to be presented sometime in October by a cast chosen from the 8th, 9th and 10th grades. Mr. Duff and Miss Louden are to direct the group and the proceeds will go to the Department of Music and Girl's Physical Education. The cast will be announced next week and rehearsals will start immediately.

Chorus and orchestra are starting satisfactorily with a membership of about 24 in each.

There are eight class periods instead of the former six class periods. Each class period consists of forty-five minutes. This system seems to be working very well with both the faculty and students.

District Attorney Cleared Of Charges

BEAVER, Pa., Sept. 18.—The requested probe of District Attorney Robert E. McCreary into "connivance between his office and the slot machine rackets," had a sudden termination late Thursday when the grand jury, in a formal report to Judge Henry H. Wilson, exonerated the district attorney's office and expressed its opinion the published statements in the "Democrat", weekly newspaper, were unfounded.

Free Thirty Geese At Pymatuning

A flock of 30 Canadian geese has been liberated at the Pymatuning reservoir by the State Game Commission, it is announced.

Upon purchase of the birds, the game commission pinioned their wings so they would be unable to fly. During the winter months the birds will be penned up and cared for by Burt Oudette, Pymatuning refuge keeper and in the spring they will be liberated again.

Being unable to get away, the geese are expected to raise their young at the reservoir next spring.

Dinner Meeting Held Thursday

Two Brave Women Quench Barn Fire

SHARON, Pa., Sept. Sept. 18.—Two farm women of this district were revealed today as heroines of a fire which threatened to destroy a large barn on the farm of Ralph Miller near Five Points. They are Mrs. Miller and Mrs. William Hodgsmith, who, with the aid of the latter's young son, entered the barn with a small fire extinguisher and extinguished a blaze in a hay mow, started by lightning striking the barn. While the bolt damaged some of the siding and a beam in the barn, the fire loss was confined to a small part of the hay in the mow.

Conference Of Red Cross Will Attract Throng

Representatives Of Chapters In Forty-One Counties Coming Here Next Month

PLANS FORMED BY COMMITTEE

Representatives of 41 counties in the western section of Pennsylvania will come to this city October 6, for the annual regional conference, when the work of the Red Cross in the state and nation will be reviewed and plans outlined for the annual roll call of the Red Cross in November.

This meeting will be one of the largest to take place in the state of Pennsylvania and will attract in the neighborhood of 200 people, it is expected.

Sessions will take place in The Castleton, and a program of exceptional merit is being planned. James L. Fieser, vice chairman of the American Red Cross, and its real executive head, and Walter Davidson, manager of the eastern area, will be the principal speakers.

Plans for entertaining the visiting delegates were outlined at the meeting of the executive committee of the Lawrence county chapter, in the chapter rooms last evening when Lee A. Hanchett, field worker for Pennsylvania was present, and discussed the conference together with the plans for the annual roll call of the chapter, which takes place during November.

Committees will be appointed by Chairman Paul F. Butz within the next few days, when the arrangements for the conference will get under way.

Heretofore, the western area has had two regional meetings, but this year one big meeting will take place which will be held in this city, New Castle being favored because of its strategic location and also as a recognition of the splendid assistance rendered during the spring floods.

Removal Charges Against Geoghan Dismissed Today

Governor Lehman Dismisses Charges In Famous Drukman Murder Case

(International News Service)

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 18.—The notorious Drukman murder case, which developed from the sordid slaying of an obscure clerk into a major political issue, was closed officially today with the dismissal by Governor Lehman of removal charges against District Attorney William F. X. Geoghan of Brooklyn.

In a 3,500-word decision, which followed a trial lasting 14 days, the governor cleared Geoghan of any "dishonesty, corruption, wilful misconduct or bad faith."

Geoghan Honest Man

"I am firmly convinced that Mr. Geoghan is an honest man," Lehman wrote.

Notice of his action was sent by the governor to Horace N. Dougherty, foreman of the extraordinary grand jury which filed the charges, accusing Geoghan of mishandling the Drukman case, failing to investigate bribery charges in connection therewith and associating with improper persons.

On every count, Lehman exonerated the district attorney, save for a brief rebuke for his admitted friendship with Leo F. Byk, former slotmachine operator, and Frank Erickson, New York bookmaker.

Must Have Faith, Minister Says

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 18.—Man's mind is "at sea" and the tragic predicament of our time is that he does not have any real faith in God, declared Rev. John S. Whale, president of Chestnut College in Cambridge, England, at the opening of the second day's session of the National Preaching Mission here today.

Rev. Whale blamed the lack of faith on three succeeding waves of discovery; the astronomical, the biological, and the psychological.

Report 750 Madrid Troops Are Killed

(International News Service)

BURGOS, Spain, Sept. 18—Throwing themselves against batteries of machine guns and "dying like sheep," 750 Madrid troops were killed in a series of engagements on the Toledo road, Gen. Emilio Mola's headquarters here reported today.

Recklessness of the Madrid forces resulted in so many deaths that even their enemies were horror-stricken at the huge mounds of corpses, according to the description received here.

Headquarters also announced that the cruiser Almirante Cervera compelled an unnamed Madrid vessel carrying several hundred fleeing militiamen to enter a port held by Molistas, resulting in their capture.

WILL ORDERS DOG GET SPECIAL CARE

(International News Service)

FLINT, Mich.—The will of Miss Pearl Post, which was recently filed here disposing of $14,000 estate, contained the following "dog clause" providing.

That Bob, four-year old dog of Miss Post, be properly taken care of;

That he be given a good home and be well treated;

That he be protected from teasing;

That he not be allowed to sleep outdoors (he might catch cold); and

That he must never be allowed near sheep (because large dogs that get into sheep pastures are occasionally shot as sheep killers.)

Sponsor Plan To Exchange Office Help

German Consul Outlines Plan Which He Believes Would Be Beneficial

(International News Service)

BOSTON.—The German government is sponsoring a plan for international exchange of office workers.

Baron Kurt Von Tippleskirch, German Consul General here is attempting to put the plan into effect in New England cities.

Under the plan, he explained, a limited number of selected young Germans would exchange jobs in the commercial field with similarly situated young men in the United States and other countries for a period of one or two years. The object is to bring to the commercial interests of each country the benefits of foreign perspective and training.

The plan is being backed by a committee of leading German commercial men and industrialists, called into being by the German Foreign Office and the Board of Trade.

German clerks would be paid the same salaries as those whose places they take, and American clerks or those from other countries, would be paid the same salary as the Germans whose positions they filled. In all cases, however, sufficient remuneration would be guaranteed Traveling expenses would be borne either by the men or their original employers.

HIDES PAUL REVERE'S DESK

(International News Service)

BOSTON.—Because the stampede of curiosity seekers had endangered fragile and valuable nautical instruments in his State street shop, Barrett Davison, proprietor of a nautical shop, had a battered mahogany desk—at one time the property of Paul Revere, moved to his room outside Boston, where no one would find it.

Finland won't get the Olympics next time. It seemed inadvisable to encourage people who set a bad example by paying their debts.

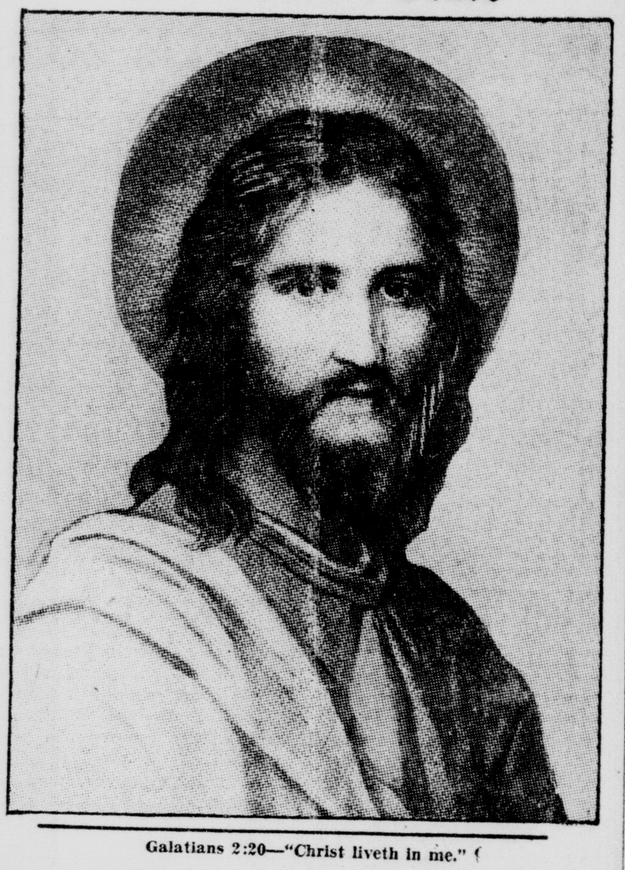
CHRISTIAN LIVING

"Brass Tacks" On The Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text



Galatians 2:20—"Christ liveth in me."

By ALVIN E. BELL

(The international uniform lesson on the above topic for Sept. 20 is Romans 12:1-21, the Golden Text being Galatians 2:20, "Christ liveth in me".

Our lesson begins with one of St. Paul's significant "therefores", to be found in most of his epistles, acting like a golden hinge connecting the doctrines of Christian faith with the practice of Christian living. "I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, to present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable, to God, which is your spiritual service." These "mercies of God" Paul has set forth in the 11 preceding chapters, in which he began with our utter condemnation because of our sin, 2-1; then showed the way in God's merciful plan of salvation through justification by faith in Jesus Christ, 5:1, 9, and the way up through our sanctification in Christ, 8:1; even up to glorification with Christ as joint heirs with him, 8:16, 17. These "mercies of God" should most reasonably be expected to result in our consecration of ourselves to God as "living" sacrifices, holy, acceptable to God." If Christ could die to lift us from the depths of condemnation to the heights of glorification we surely ought to be willing to live for him in "spiritual service".

Transformers Not Conformers.

Paul never endorsed the policy expressed in the saying, "When in Rome do as the Romans do." On the contrary, he urged the Christians in Rome to be different and by their conduct appeal to the Romans to pattern after them. They were not to be conformers but transformers of Roman society: "Be not conformed to this world, but be ye transformed by the renewing of your minds, that ye may prove what is that good and acceptable and perfect will of God."

Humility In Service.

Remembering God's mercies will keep one humble and prevent one from "thinking of himself more highly than he ought to think". It will help him get along with others, for, "we, being many, are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another". Whatever one's assigned service may be, he will render that service in the proper spirit of "simplicity, diligence and cheerfulness".

Right Attitudes In Love.

Genuine love will produce right attitudes toward friend or foe: "Let love be without hypocrisy." Such love will help us to boost the other fellow rather than push ourselves forward: "In honor prefering one another." This love alone will help one to "bless them that persecute you; bless and curse not"...."Render no man evil for evil" and "avenge not yourselves, but give place unto the wrath of God." This love makes for peaceableness. "If it be possible, as much as in you lieth, be at peace with all men." This love is the only force sufficient to overcome evil by changing it into good and to conquer enemies by transforming them into friends: "If thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him to drink: for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire upon his head. Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good." This is practical religion, the outgrowth of our gratitude for "the mercies of God" in Jesus Christ.

OIL DOSE TOO MUCH FOR SCHOOL STUDENT

(International News Service)

HANOVER, Pa.—High school initiations aren't always as much fun as they are supposed to be, as far as Robert Hetrick, 15-year-old Hanover high school student, is concerned.

When young Hetrick started classes this fall he underwent an initiation ceremony with others of his class. A dose of oil was administered during the ceremony as a result of which he became so ill a doctor had to be summoned to treat him.

Other members of the class, to whom the oil "treatment" was also administered, were not so seriously affected.

CUBA-VENEZUELA TREATY

(International News Service)

HAVANA.—Cuba's state department has received overtures from Venezuela for negotiations with a view to establishing a reciprocal trade treaty. Venezuelan officials have tentatively proposed to buy Cuban liquors, manufactured and leaf tobacco, chemical and other industrial products when Cuba becomes a customer for Venezuela's crude oil, jerked beef, cocoa and coffee.

Expect Paris Strike To End

Strikers Gather In Huge Mass Meeting To Hear Compromise Terms

FACTORIES LIKELY TO RESUME TODAY

(International News Service)

PARIS, Sept. 18.—Still occupying the great textile factories at Lille, strikers there gathered in a huge mass meeting today and silently listened to the terms agreed upon at a meeting of Premier Leon Blum and representatives of employers and employees.

Although the Paris compromise was regarded as a victory for the plant owners, it was expected that the workers would accept it and evacuation of the factories would start this afternoon or tomorrow, when 35,000 men resume work.

Threat of another serious wave of strikes was averted when the Blum conference, digging into fundamentals, won a promise from the employees' delegates that occupation of factories would not be resorted to in possible future labor disputes.

The employers agreed on an immediate six per cent salary increase, instead of the ten per cent previously promised.

The government guaranteed that the authority of factory owners would not be interfered with, and that employees' delegates on factory administrative boards will be chosen from the ranks of actual workmen to prevent outside control by politicians or agitators.

Expect Field Day To Attract 5,000

GROVE CITY, Sept. 18.—Arrangements to entertain 5000 sportsmen of Western Pennsylvania were completed today by the local Sportsmen's Club for the second annual field trials to be held Saturday at Millbrook Park, north of town. The program, featuring competition for all kinds of hunting dogs, bly and bait-casting, and shooting contests, provides a full day of sport.

The shooting competition gained interest today when officials were notified that a national champion markswomen would compete in the small-bore events. She is Mrs. Dorothea Kelley, of Akron, O., who recently set a new world's record for women with the remarkable score of 400 in a team match at Indiana, Pa. The score has been recognized officially by the National Rifle Association.

All praise to the inventor of lemon pie. It's the only great invention that isn't used to help kill people.

PAPER BALLOTS MAY BE NEEDED IN MERCER CO.

(Special To The News)

MERCER, Sept. 18.—The betting would favor the use of paper ballots rather than machines in the 97 precincts of Mercer county at the election of November 3, is the opinion here of those in touch with the situation. Harrisburg authorities interrogated have not written the commissioners any letter of an authoritative nature, but the number of parties and the pre-emptions of candidates taken along with the probability that spaces must be provided for insertion of the names of electors means that the machines cannot be used and that paper ballots will break previous records in dimensions must be substituted.

The commissioners and their registration clerk, Frank McConnon, will be prepared to meet the emergency. They will have to provide booths for the 52 wards in which 70 machines are now used. Not only must booths be provided, but the boards used to the machines will have to be put in a position to handle the situation.

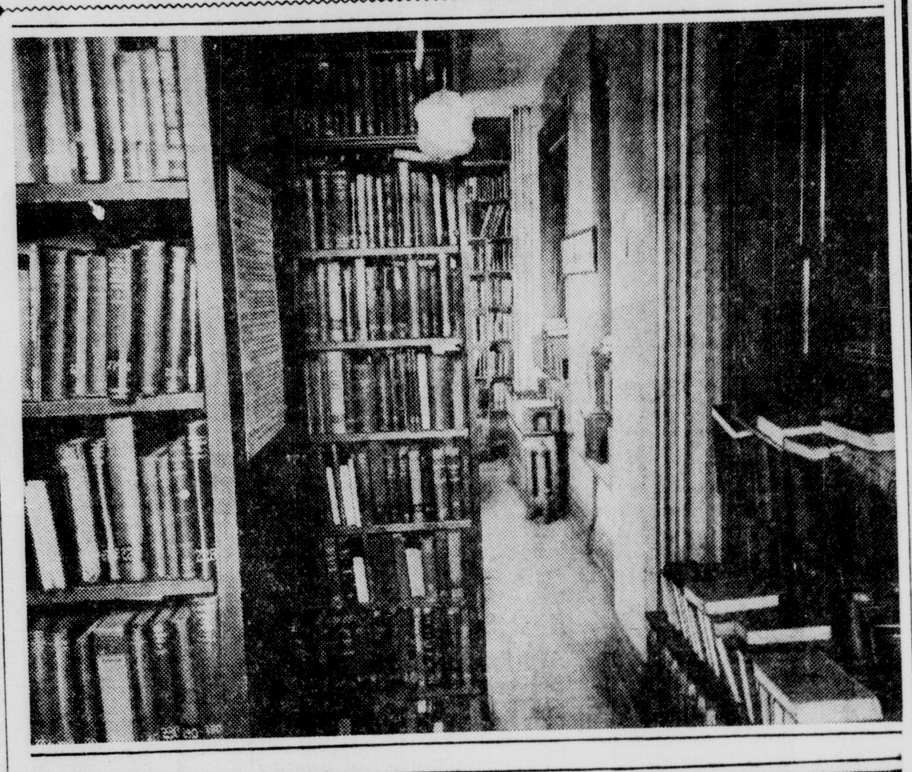
EXPERIMENT ON TREE

(International News Service)

LENINGRAD—Russian scientists are hoping to change the tropical quinine tree into an annual plant which will grow anywhere. Experimental cultivation of the tree has been begun at the All-Union Institute of Plant Cultivation and it is hoped that the new plant will contain all the products of the quinine tree.

But if the third party doesn't hope to win, but only defeat Roosevelt and Landon, where shall we get a President?

LIBRARIAN TELLS OF NEED FOR NEW CITY LIBRARY



VIEWS SHOWING CROWDED INTERIOR OF LIBRARY

Miss Alice M. Sterling, librarian of the New Castle Free Public Library, when asked to comment on the need of a new library building said: "Just look about you. I am sure that will be all that is necessary. See these books shelves occupying nearly half of what should be reading-room space. See these books on the window ledges and even on the radiators. There is no other place for them, and yet we should have more books. We have less than half the number we should have for a city of this size, according to the standards of the American Library Association, and people are so eager for them. You know, of course, that most of our borrowers cannot afford to buy books for themselves. And it is a pity that an adequate supply of good books is not available to them.

"We do the best we can but I have longed for facilities which would enable us more nearly to satisfy the needs, and now, when it seems that we have the chance of a life-time to secure such facilities and that my dreams are to be fulfilled, I am very happy, not for myself and our staff alone, but more particularly when I think what it will mean to the thousands of our people who depend upon us for their reading. .

"I don't mean merely that we will be able to have more books, though they are badly needed. oD you realize that many perosns do not have a place at home where they can sit down in quiet to read? A good reading room is almost as important as books to them. Just look at our situation here. Not only is the space entirely inadequate but it is right in the midst of everything. All the confusion of people returning books to the desk and taking out new ones is, as you see, right here almost on top of those persons who are trying to read. The very fact that so many come here and try to read under such conditions is ample proof of the lack of any facilities at home.

"I am sure that if our more fortunately situated citizens could see these conditions, they would be as eager as I am to see them bettered. I wish they would come and see for themselves, but I suppose that is hardly possible. I wonder if you could not publish some photographs which would convey some idea, at least, of what you have seen."

"You know," Miss Sterling continued, "I have been wondering if some of our citizens would not like to seize the opportunities which will be presented in the new building to establish memorials to some departed dear one or to the family. A memorial in a library seems to me such a beautiful one, so different from cold stone. It is as if it were a perpetuation of the living service of the donor."

Ohio Farmers Now Bootleg Cabbage Crop

Under Contract To Sell At Fraction Of Current Market Price

(International News Service)

LIBERTY CENTER, O.—Northern Ohio farmers are engaged in a new type of bootlegging—not liquor, but cabbages.

Many farmers are under contract with kraut packing plants to furnish cabbages at prices ranging from $6 to $8 per ton. That's what irks the farmers and sends them into their fields after dark shipping the other half of "corned beef and—" by the truckload.

Due to the limitation of the cabbage crop due to drought and other plagues, buyers are offering as high as $60 to $80 a ton for the vegetable. In fact, some growers not under contract to furnish cabbage are hauling their crops to cities in southern Ohio and receiving up to $140 a ton.

In those lofty prices is found the reason for the nightly trip to the cabbage patch, despite the kraut contracts.

T. R. GRANDSON FOUND WORKING IN PAINT SHOP

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA. — Anxious to learn the business from the bottom up, Theodore Roosevelt, 3rd, 22-year-old grandson of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, was discovered working here in the varnish control laboratory of the E. I. du-Pont de Nemours Company.

Young Roosevelt, who says he is "fond" of his work, is aspiring to be a paint salesman and plans to work at various jobs in the plant until he learns the product thoroughly. He is living in a rooming house near the plant.

Questioned about his politics, the descendant of a family long prominent in Republican party affairs said: "I think Landon and Knox have a fair chance to win the fall election and of course I want them to."

Plans One Stop Flight To Arctic

(International News Service)

MOSCOW—A one-stop flight from Moscow to Franz Josef Land with a stop at Naryan-Mara, is planned in the near future, according to a report made by M. Vodopyanov, Polar flyer, at the last conference of the Northern Sea Route Administration here. Vodopyanov, accompanied by a plane piloted by V. Makhotkin, recently completed this flight—with several stops.

Today Makhotkin is exploring the Arctic isles in the vicinity of Franz Josef Land, seeking a base for the planes that will participate in the proposed flight to the North Pole. Rudolf Island will probably be chosen. Construction of radio buoys and the shipment of tractors, fuel and equipment to Franz Josef Land has already been started.

TWIN ELOPMENT

(International News Service)

HADDONFIELD, N. J.—George W. and Walter N. Faucett, 22 twin brothers, staged a twin elopment to Elkton, Maryland, nearby "Gretna Green," to marry Georgianna Tyson, 19, and Jane O'Donnell, 18, respectively. Injecting another "twin angle" into the proceedings, the former Miss O'Donnell is also a twin.

James Johnston, Pioneer Of Old West, Dead At 91

(International News Service)

LOS ANGELES—Funeral services here recently marked the passing of another historic character of the old West, James A. Johnston, 91, friend of Kit Carson and last surviving framer of the Wyoming state constitution.

The widely known banker, legislator and cattleman, died in a hotel where he had been living for the past 16 years since he came to Southern California following his retirement.

Born near Dayton, O., Johnston rode a horse at the age of 18 to Colorado and later to Wyoming, where he pioneered in the then virtually uncharted wilderness.

A member of the Wyoming territorial legislature, Johnston was named a delegate to the constitutional convention in recognition of his outstanding record. For eight years he served as state commissioner of irrigation and for 35 years was a director of the Stock Growers' National Bank, Cheyenne.

PROTEST LENS LICENSE

(International News Service)

HARTFORD, Conn.—Under Connecticut law, every druggist or newsstand operator who desires to sell sunglasses must have a $1 license from the commission of opticians. The Connecticut Pharmaceutical Association has filed a protest with the attorney general claiming that unless something is done, there will be sun-glass "bootleggers."

Note on conversation: The jaybirds voice wouldn't be so irritating if he didn't say the same thing so much.

Sailor's English Rather Puzzling

H:] For Landlubbers To Understand Some Of Breezy Terms

(International News Service)

DETROIT—A recent meeting of the Lake Michigan Yachting association revealed "English as she is spoke by the gobs" to be quite different from that to be heard in the street of any American town.

For example, can you measure a fog in any English that you know? No? Then ask the sailor.

A fog is "dense" when an object is not visible at 50 yards. It is "thick" when an object is not visible at 200. It is "plain" when not visible at more than 40[illegible] yards.

Furthermore, the visibility on the water is "good" when you can see five miles, and "excellent" when you can see 30 miles. A "mist" or a "haze" reduces visibility to about a mile.

Now consider the moon. Can you "read" it?

Says a sailor, a clean moon indicates frost; a dull-looking moon, rain; a singlt halo around the moon, a storm; a high moon, cold weather; and a low moon, warm weather. If you can see the moon in the daytime you may expect cool days.

Then there are the cloud streamers we always notice hanging wispily in the sky. When they point upward, they mean just one thing to a sailor; the clouds are descending and there will be rain. When they point downward, the clouds are ascending, indicating dry weather.

And of the word "air".

A "light air" is a wind of three miles an hour; a "slight breeze" four to six, a "gentle breeze" 11 to 16, a "fresh breeze" 17 to 21, a "moderate gale" 30 to 35, a "strong gale" 44 to 50, a "whole gale" 51 to 59, a "storm' 59 to 65, and a "hurricane" anything about 65 miles an hour.

Much of a sailor's talk refers to the weather, a very important item when he is at sea. A blue sky in the northwest indicates approaching clear weather, and a heavy cloud in the southwest, which appears to settle back again, a storm.

A sailor refers to white streamer clouds in a blue sky as "mare's tails". Furthermore, clouds, white and mottled, are called "mackeral" clouds and indicate a change of wind.

NAVAL NOTES

By M. L. NIXON
Naval Recruiter, Second Floor Federal Building

The Navy is usually thought of as our first line of defense. Also it develops American citizens. About 15,000 men enter the Navy every year and the same number are returned by the Navy to civilian life. These men returning to civilian life have been physically developed by correct exercises and have been taught many useful trades, self-control, obedience, loyalty, and patriotism. They have been thrown in intimate contact with men from all sections of the country and with people of foreign countries until they no longer think of themselves as residents of this or that city, but as citizens of the United States of America. Foreign cruises of the United States Navy has given its personnel the opportunity to compare American customs, traditions and institutions with those of other countries; and men return with a greater admiration and love for their own country and institutions. Ex-Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur referred to the Navy as the greatest educational institution in the world. The United States Navy has taken a prominent part in developing aviation, radio communication, short methods of navigation, radio compasses, earth induction compasses and many other things of like technical nature. Such is the character building nature of the Navy today.

Hope Community Chest Succeeds

National Officials Interested In Success Of New Castle Chest

By ARTHUR C. WIMER
(Special Washington Correspondent, New Castle News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 18. Officials of community chests and councils, Inc., today expressed the hope New Castle citizens would help the city go over-the-top this year in its community chest drive.

Officials of the organization are in Washington participating in the 1936 mobilization for Human Needs Conference. They said 330 cities, including New Castle, would conduct chest campaigns this year. They appealed to New Castle residents to contribute generously.

In a speech before the Mobilization for Human Needs Conference urging support of the community chest movement, President Stillman F. Westbrook of Community Chests and Councils, Inc., declared that "the greatest anti-social force in our urban communities is the attitude of lethargy and apathy on the part of the average business man toward these social problems, and as a direct corollary to that opinion, I believe that the greatest contribution which the professional social worker can make to the cause is the education of laymen, particularly the business men, in the true nature of the social problems of their community."

THE PARENT PROBLEM

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

SHOUTING HARMFUL

Speaking before the elementary teachers at the Michigan Education association at Grand Rapids recently, I said something like this:

"'Louder, William!' shouts the teacher. William makes a drowning effort. His next few words, perhaps are heard, after which they most surely will become more faint. William was already overwhelmed with fear. That's why he barely could be heard in the first place. His breathing was affected. Not sufficient air was being forced across his vocal chords. His whole speech mechanism was thrown out of gear. His diaphragm and tongue and lips, and his ideas, like soldiers in disorganized retreat, were panicky.

"We do not help the timid child of six or 10, or the youth of 16, to speak more loudly or distinctly by yelling at him to speak up. On the contrary, we merely magnify his fears and render him less able to express himself effectively.

"Nor can we hope to cure this child all at once. It may take weeks and months and years of patient effort. He will improve as he acquires more social courage and self-confidence. When he has something which he really wants to say, and feels secure and safe from ridicule while saying it; when when he wants to say, moreover, so absorbs his interest as to make him get attention off himself, he will almost surely speak so as to be heard distinctly.

First-Graders Infantile.

"Some children enter the first grade still very infantile in speech, whereas the child's parents might think his 'baby talk' is cunning, his schoolmates are inclnied to ridicule him—and sometimes the teacher will, alas! Not if she cares to help the child. Rather she will seem at first not to notice his speech defect. Later she will, in a gentle, kindly way, occasionally pronounce the difficult word or sound for him, hoping he will choose to repeat it correctly after her. But if he does not, she will not insist. She will wait for a more favorable occasion, when alone with him she will patiently exercise him for a brief period in making correct sounds after her. Anyway, she will be very careful to avoid rendering this young sufferer more self-conscious. She will aim at helping him enjoy more feelings of success, and she will rejoice over gradual progress after several weeks."

Chintz and challis prints are being employed for early fall frocks. They are especially adapted to the back-to-school dresses. They are also seen in typical shirtwaist blouses, for wear with woolen skirts.

NO ACTION ON PAVING LIENS

No Action Will Be Taken Until Legal Bureau Audit Is Completed

During councilmanic session at the city building Thursday Mayor Charles E. McGrath inquired of colleagues what action toward collection they desired concerning $200,000, worth of paving liens, aged between 10 and 14 years. Councilman James Fink suggested to Mayor McGrath that council take no action relative to the unpaid paving liens until the audit of the city solicitor's books has been completed. The mayor agreed with the suggestion.

Margiotti Probes Uniontown Case

(International News Service)

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 18.—Postponing appointment of a special investigator for the time being, Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti today pursued his own investigation of the alleged "third degree murder" of Frank C. Monaghan, 64-year-old former hotel keeper, who died while being questioned by police last Saturday.

The attorney general, following a preliminary check-up on the scene, immediately made several startling statements, among which were:

1. That seven persons, including two assemblymen, were "in and out" of Fayette county's basement detective headquarters while Monaghan was being grilled in connection with the pocket-knife slashing of chief county detective John C. Wall. The others in what Coroner S. A. Baltz characterized as a "torture chamber were State Troopers Stacey Gunerman and Anthony Sanute, and County Detective Wilbert "Patsy" Minerd, all accused of murder and now at liberty under blanket bond of $20,000; District Attorney James C. Reilly; his assistant, Harry Byrne; Jack Hann, acting county detective, and assistant police chief Charles Malik. The assemblymen named were Harry K. Cochran, of Dawson, and Matt Welsh, of Connellsville, both Democrats.

2. That he found many evidences of attempts to clear the Bertillon room that was used for the questioning of "tell-tale" marks.

3. That he might decide to appoint himself as special prosecutor in the case.

Margiotti went over the ground thoroughly. After a lengthy examination of the alleged "torture chamber," he went to the hospital to talk to Wall, now recovering rapidly from knife wounds in the throat. After his examination, Margiotti locked the rooms and pocketed the keys.

The attorney general questioned the janitor of the police building, and it was from him he said he learned efforts had been made to clean up the place.

He then went to the Uniontown-Connellsville highway with the district attorney, and heard from Reilly himself the story that he and Wall, while driving from Connellsville, saw Monaghan's car "zig-zagging," found him intoxicated with a chambermaid from his hotel, Florence Dean, and stopped him.

Reilly retold how they ordered Monaghan into the back seat, and that Wall took the wheel while Reilly drove his own car ahead. A short time later, Reilly said, he looked back and saw Wall staggering along the road with his throat cut, and the Monaghan car was going the other way.

In his interview with Wall, Margiotti said, the detective told the same story.

The talk of "murder" was first raised by Coroner Baltz, who said his autopsy revealed Monaghan died from a severe beating. The autopsy was demanded by Monaghan's son, a Yale professor, who disbelieved the announcement his father succumbed to a heart attack induced by acute alcoholism. The son, Frank C. Monaghan, Jr., is active in the investigation "to get to the bottom of things." He has charged his father was murdered to keep him quiet about several political scandals.

WASHINGTON AT A GLANCE

Paper Switches Over To Landon

Baltimore Sun, Democratic Newspaper, Renounces Rooseveltian Policies

IDEAS CHANGE ON RADICALISM

Central Press
Washington Bureau
602 Times-Herald Bldg.

By CHARLES P STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Readers of the Baltimore Sun may have been surprised by the openness of the paper's recent admission that it "is unable advocate the re-election of President Roosevelt".

However, no one who has kept in touch with the Sun's editorial attitude can have doubted that it has been out of sympathy with the New Deal's general policy (a policy it endorses in many of its details) for a long time. BEING unsympathetic and SAYING so are two different things, nevertheless. For example, Senator Carter Glass' Lynchburg (Va.) Daily News (morning) and Daily Advance (afternoon) obviously ARE New Dealerishly unsympathetic but they don't announce that they are.

The distinction is substantially the same as the distinction between the respective positions of Senator Glass and ex-Senator James A. Reed of Missouri.

Virtually every time a New Deal issue arises, Glass is against it. Still, he is a Democrat and he accepts President Roosevelt (who essentially IS the New Deal) as a fellow-Democrat, his party leader. Reed's version is that he is a Democrat but that the New Deal isn't; hence he repudiates the president as his leader.

AFTER CONSIDERATION

The Baltimore Sun today is as unequivocal as ex-Senator Reed.

It arrived at its decision, too, even more impressively than he did. The ex-senator did his deciding in a hurry. The Sun editorially thought the matter over until well on into the campagin, giving an appearance of plenty of serious consideration.

Incidentally the Sun showed a first class quality of courage.

At the very moment of its anti-Roosevelt declaration it was conducting a Maryland straw poll, as between the two presidential candidates, and the poll, at that juncture, was going somewhat pro-Roosevelt.

WHAT WEIGHT?

Perhaps, as a newspaperman, I overestimate the Baltimore Sun's influence.

It is a curious thing that most newspapers, which newspapermen chiefly reverence, usually are not particularly popular among readers. Illustratively, the old New York Sun, journalism's Bible, never was a circulation-buster.

Besides, I'm not sure of the Sun's weight outside the sphere of its immediate circulation. It counts throughout Maryland, Virginia, Delaware, New Jersey and up into New York, but I am not so sure that the west ever heard of it. I know of it in the District of Columbia, but the District is voteless.

HULL A CONSERVATIVE?

The Baltimore Sun, conservative in its way, referred to Secretary of State Hull as the one surviving conservative in the present administration.

What is a Republican and what is a radical?

Secretary Hull, previously classed as a radical (in Hoover days) rates as a conservative now.

The Baltimore Sun terms him the "stepchild of the administration".

It's aptly put.

Lack Of Steel Slows Up Work At New Viaduct

Flood Lights Will Be Installed To Speed Work, In Near Future

Progress on the new viaduct at Edenburg has been somewhat slackened due to the fact that steel shipments have been held up considerably.

Dan Mullett, superintendent of the construction, states that within a few days a large battery of floodlights will be installed at various points along the project. This will be done so that when the steel arrives, two shifts of men can be put to work and in this way beat "Old Man Winter." He also states that the work should be completed and the road open to traffic about December 1. However, present conditions make a completion date hard to determine.

Concrete paving was started today on the New Castle side of the viaduct, and this should be completed in about 10 days. Nine concrete piers were erected. The forms for the last were being torn down yesterday.

Steel has already arrived for the Pennsylvania crossing and this is now being put in place. The truss span which will be placed over the river is what is causing the delay at the present time, and until this can be put into place slower progress will be shown. Orders, according to Mr. Mullett, have been delayed as long as 90 days. An average of 300 men have been on the payroll since the start of the steel construction at the viaduct. The men work in various shifts throughout the week, however, and the number working at any one time is only about 100.

Work on the spur road into Edenburg was completed last week. This is an amesite road and joins the main approach on the Poland side of the river. The detcur up Sky hill from Stump's Corners to Edenburg is still in use and travel into the village is very difficult because the viaduct approach on the New Castle side crosses the detour route.

Dog Patrols Beat On 8-Hour Shift

(International News Service)

BRISTOL, Conn.—"Rex" serves two masters. For eight hours every day, rain or shine he "pounds the beat" with Patrolman Cornelius Connelly.

The rest of the time he is faithful to his owner, James J. Dunn, funeral director.

Rex is chiefly of St. Bernard strain with a strong dash of German shepherd. Every morning at 9, the quiet, intelligent dog meets his policeman friend in front of the West Street station. He quits at 5 sharp no matter what the patrolman might be doing. He is ten years old.

CLAIMS RECORD AS PIN-DROPPING CHAMP OF WORLD

(International News Service)

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah.—The world's pin-dropping championship was claimed recently by John Fehr, slender 79 year old chief custodian of the famed Latter Day Saints (Mormon) Tabernacle.

He also laid claim to first honors as a whisperer and rubber of hands.

During the past 34 years Fehr estimated he has dropped "around 285,600 pins, whispered half million passages and rubbed hands half a million times."

These actions he revealed are part of his duties at the Tabernacle.

In showing groups of tourists about the famous structure, he always demonstrates the tabernacle's marveloups acoustics. He stands on a platform 200 feet away from the sightseers. He drops a pin upon a rail, whispers and rubs his hands.

All of these minute sounds are carried to his listeners.

Fehr was born in Switzerland, of a long line of yodelers.

DEAD MAN ONLY LAID DOWN TO SLEEP

(International News Service)

FINDLAY, O.—"There's a dead man lying along the tracks, north of Mortimer," came a voice over the wire at operator Wagner's railroad signal tower recently. Wagner phoned a Findlay undertaker. Would he send an ambulance immediately?

When deputy sheriffs, the undertaker and reporters, arrived on the scene, the "dead man" was just getting into the sheriff's car for a ride to jail. He was booked as Lenwood Suttles, 30, a negro from Reading, Pa., who said that he was tired and had lain down beside the T. and O. C. railroad tracks for a short snooze.

The way to keep from hating an inferior race is to keep ahead of it.

DRIVES RACERS AT EIGHTY-FIVE YEARS

(International News Service)

GRANVILLE, O.—Believed to be the oldest active horseman in Ohio, Otto Jones, 85-year-old farmer of near here, has driven in two harness races this season and will participate in a third at the Croton fair next week.

His passion for racing recently caused him to haul his sulky on top of a buggy nearly 40 miles to the Ashley fair. His horse, Valley Watts was tied to the back of the buggy.

"I couldn't afford one of those new-fangled horse cars, so I had to let Valley Watts walk all that distance just before I raced her," he explained.

Jones believes himself to be not only the oldest driver in Ohio but in the nation as well.

Spectators Are Thrilled When Pole Is Raised

F. M. Woodward, "Steeple Jack" Climbs It While Dangling In Mid-Air

WEIGHS 1400 POUNDS ABOUT 80 FEET HIGH

The Stars and Stripes will soon wave from an 80-foot iron pole erected on the court house lawn this morning under the direction of F. M. Woodward, local "steeple jack." The pole raising was witnessed by an interested crowd of spectators who gasped when Woodward climbed the pole while it was partially raised, to adjust ropes.

The pole weighs 1,400 pounds and is about 80 feet long. The base is six-inch iron pipe, tapering to about two inches at the top. To raise such a heavy weight without the aid of machinery presented quite a problem.

Woodward strung a heavy steel cable between the tops of two trees on the court house lawn. A block and tackle was suspended from this cable, a rope passed through the pulleys was tied around the pole in such a manner that the weight was pretty evenly distributed on each side.

Another pulley was tied at the bottom of a large tree through which the rope leading to the pulley on the cable was passed. Ten men manned this rope in raising the pole into place.

When the pole was nearly perpendicular, it was found that the rope which had been attached around the center had been drawn up to the pulleys and the pole could be raised no further.

It was then that Woodward displayed his skill as a "steeple jack." He climbed the swaying pole, secured it with another rope to the steel cable, then lowered the grasp which the rope passing through the pulley had on the cable. The pole was then successfully raised.

The most thrilling moment during the operation was when Woodward climbed the pole suspended in mid-air. The pole fits into a base of several tons of concrete.

At the conclusion of the pole raising, Woodward climbed it again and released the ropes. He will climb it again when he places a ball on top and puts the flag rope through the pulleys.

Eddie Peyton Seeks Release

Convicted Bandleader Friend Of Squire Westwood, Asks For Release

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 18.—Eddie (Swing It) Peyton, local band leader serving a term in Allegheny county workhouse for assault and battery, swung back into the news today when he asked Judge M. A. Musmanno to let him out of jail because his wife is about to become a mother.

Because he, as a musician, can give jobs to 40 men who played in his orchestra and because his 63-year-old mother will be reduced to want without him, were other reasons cited to show why Peyton's request should be granted.

Peyton, one of Squire James J. Westwood's star witnesses when the latter was tried and convicted for the murder of his wife, stated in his petition that the child will be born in three or four weeks.

Chrisner, Edward Scales, alias "Jack of Diamonds," and a woman were concerned in the attempt to hold up the Bessemer bank. Officials put up a fight and the would be robbers were forced to flee.

HARVARD EXHIBITS OLD GERMAN ART

(International News Service)

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—The most important exhibition of Old Masters of German Art ever held in the United States, which included some 40 paintings, sculptures, and works in precious metals from the period 1450-1550, was conducted at the Germanic museum of Harvard university, in connection with the Tercentenary celebration.

Dated 1455, the oldest piece on display is a religious painting, "The Presentation in the Temple," by Johann Korbecke, loaned by John M. Schiff of New York.

A miniature medieval church, plated with gold, famous among art connoisseurs as the Hainauer Reliquary was one of the most notable objects on display.

Lettuce Workers Draw Lines For Showdown Fight

Agitators Are At Work At Salinas, California, Scene Of Battles

(International News Service)

SALINAS, Cal., Sept. 18.—Battle lines were drawn today for a finish fight in the strike of 3,500 lettuce workers which has blighted the $11,000,000 lettuce industry of "the world's salad bowl" and turned the streets of Salinas into a bloody battleground.

The last 24 hours were devoid of violence, save for the "mistake" shooting of a strikebreaker by a guard, but the stage was set this morning for repetition on a greater scale of Wednesday's street riots in which two men were shot and a dozen injured.

Many Agitators

Hordes of communist agitators were pouring into the Salinas valley, bent on provoking violence and prolonging the strike.

The federal government took cognizance of the red activity by ordering here two army officers, Col. Homer Oldfield of the Intelligence Division of the Ninth Corps Area and Col. Henry R. Sanborn of San Rafael, Cal.

Three hundred specially deputized citizens patrolled the streets, grimly determined to crush any violent outbreak. The citizen army was organized by Sheriff Carl H. Abbott when Gov. Frank F. Merriam refused to call out the National Guard until the full "power of the county" has failed to maintain order.

Abandon Hope For Baltimore Man In Battle With Ocean

Wreckage Of Cabin-Cruiser Is Washed Up On Shore, Pilot Swims In

(International News Service)

LONGPORT, N. J., Sept. 18.—Hope for safety of George R. Zorn, of the General Elevator Company, Baltimore, was practically abandoned today when wreckage of Zorn's cabin-cruiser "Dorothy" was washed up on the beach here.

Only a short time previously, the craft's pilot, William Leiber, stumbled exhausted from the heavy surf after swimming two miles to shore when huge waves disabled Zorn's boat.

Coastguardsmen said there was virtually no chance that Zorn could have kept afloat in the raging sea.

Lettuce Workers Draw Lines For Showdown Fight

Agitators Are At Work At Salinas, California, Scene Of Battles

(International News Service)

SALINAS, Cal., Sept. 18.—Battle lines were drawn today for a finish fight in the strike of 3,500 lettuce workers which has blighted the $11,000,000 lettuce industry of "the world's salad bowl" and turned the streets of Salinas into a bloody battleground.

The last 24 hours were devoid of violence, save for the "mistake" shooting of a strikebreaker by a guard, but the stage was set this morning for repetition on a greater scale of Wednesday's street riots in which two men were shot and a dozen injured.

Many Agitators

Hordes of communist agitators were pouring into the Salinas valley, bent on provoking violence and prolonging the strike.

The federal government took cognizance of the red activity by ordering here two army officers, Col. Homer Oldfield of the Intelligence Division of the Ninth Corps Area and Col. Henry R. Sanborn of San Rafael, Cal.

Three hundred specially deputized citizens patrolled the streets, grimly determined to crush any violent outbreak. The citizen army was organized by Sheriff Carl H. Abbott when Gov. Frank F. Meriam refused to call out the National Guard until the full "power of the county" has failed to maintain order.

Abandon Hope For Baltimore Man In Battle With Ocean

Wreckage Of Cabin-Cruiser Is Washed Up On Shore, Pilot Swims In

(International News Service)

LONGPORT, N. J., Sept. 18.—Hope for safety of George R. Zorn, of the General Elevator Company, Baltimore, was practically abandoned today when wreckage of Zorn's cabin-cruiser "Dorothy" was washed up on the beach here.

Only a short time previously, the craft's pilot, William Leiber, stumbled exhausted from the heavy surf after swimming two miles to shore when huge waves disabled Zorn's boat.

Coastguardsmen said there was virtually no chance that Zorn could have kept afloat in the raging sea.

President Goes Back To Harvard

To Aid In Celebration Of 300th Anniversary Of Noted University

TO MAKE SPEECH THIS AFTERNOON

By GEORGE DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

ABOARD THE PRESIDENTIAL SPECIAL ENROUTE TO CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 18.—A loyal son of Harvard, President Roosevelt turned back to his "old yard" today to help America's oldest institution of higher education celebrate its 300th anniversary.

He came up from Washington aboard a special train as "honorary chairman of the United States Harvard Tercentenary Commission," created by special act of congress—but his part in the pre-arranged ceremonies was to be only incidental insofar as the solemnity of the occasion to the university was concerned.

"The persident has only a brief part in the long program," a Harvard official wired newspaper men accompanying the executive.

Mr. Roosevelt, however, was to make a speech and there was considerable speculation as to what he might say once his place on the program was reached.

Leaving Washington late last night, President Roosevelt brought both political and economic problems with him on the train.

Farley On Train

National Democratic Chairman James A. Farley, made a special trip down to the national capitol to ride back on the Roosevelt train as far as New York. He brought latest reports from the campaign front and a number of suggestions concerning points which should be visited before November 3.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins also was aboard as a last-minute guest, riding clear through to Cambridge. It was believed the increasingly serious labor controversies in several widely separated cities was inviting her chief attention at the moment.

In the afternoon, the Harvard Alumni Association meets in the tercentenary theatre and in the course of this meeting the president will speak.

The president will leave Cambridge late in the afternoon for Hyde Park and remain there at his family home until September 29 when an address before the New York state Democratic convention in Syracuse will plunge him openly and actively into his campaign for re-election.

PEACHES OR PEARS FOR CANNING—NEW YORK STATE

Lawrence County Farms And Farmers

By H. R. McCulloch, County Agent

FIELD MICE CONTINUE TO DAMAGE ORCHARDS

Although within recent years the Pennsylvania fruit growers has been increasing his attention to the problem of orchard protection against field mice, damage still occurs each winter. In fact the last two winters have been more than the average amount of this tree girdling. The apple tree is most frequently injured but the mice also will injure the pear, peach, plum and cherry.

Injury is done by two types of mice, the meadow and the pine mouse. The long tailed deer mouse does not injure fruit trees. The meadow mouse usually does the work above or slightly below the ground surface while the pine mouse more like a mole, lives in burrows in the ground and confines its injury almost entirely to the roots and portions of the trunk which are beneath the soil surface.

While mechanical protectors such as tar paper, wood veneer, or quarter inch mesh hardward cloth are fairly effective against meadow mice when they are properly placed, this method of control is not effective against pine mice because of the depth at which they work Repellent washes have also been used but are not generally successful.

The most effective protection against both meadow and pine mice is poisoned bait. Strychnine treated grain bait has been used successfully in Pennsylvania for several years. Fresh baits such as chopped apple, carrot, or sweet potato poisoned with strychnine or arsenic may be even more effective than grain baits under some circumstances. Carrots seem to be especially acceptable to the mice. These fresh baits are more perishable than the poisoned grain. Some investigators feel that perhaps the ideal method of orchard protection would involve a combination of both types. Of course poisoned apple would be of questionable value when there is an abundance of dropped fruit on the ground. Information for the preparing of baits can be secured at the Agricultural Extension Office, No. 206 Post Office Building, New Castle, Pa.

Bait is frequently distributed in the orchard just before harvest time although a more common season of distribution is as soon as convenient after harvesting and before snowfall. It is sometimes necessary to distribute bait two or three times during the season especially in cases of severe infestation.

Individual mice may range over an area of a half acre or more. Thus it is apparent that baiting should extend into any areas closely adjacent to the orchard where mice may be living in large numbers.

FUMIGATES TO KILL GRAIN WEEVIL

Several species of beetles and moths feed on flour and grain. The larvae of these insects are known as grain weevils.

Such insects are found in bins and granaries throughout the year working in scattered grain and remnants of the preceding crop. This condition makes control practices difficult.

The essential part for the control is the cleaning of waste materials out of the bins and from the floor cracks in the bins, and fumigating with carbon bisulphide before the new grain is stored. If this procedure does not completely eradicate the insect, and there is a reinfestation in the new grain, then it is necessary to fumigate with carbon bisulphide.

If a reinfestation does occur it will be showing up at the present time. Probably the first notice of this reinfestation will be the heating of the wheat in the bin.

If grain is to be treated, three pounds of carbon bisulphide should be used for each 100 bushels of grain. The grain to be treated should be covered with burlap and the proper amount of carbon bisulphide placed on the burlap. The granary should be left closed from 36 to 48 hours and then well aired.

Carbon bisulphide is very effective against Grain Weevil. It is, however, highly explosive and all lights and fire should be kept away from the material.

Care must be taken in preparing the grain for fumigation so that all cracks and open spaces are closed. This can be done either by placing lath over the opening or by sealing with paper.

APPLE POMACE MAY BE USED AS DAIRY FEED

Apple pomace, the by-product from cider mills, makes a safe and satisfactory feed for dairy cows if fed before it ferments and becomes rancid.

In feed value apple pomace compares rather closely to corn silage. It contains somewhat less protein and total digestible nutrients than does corn silage, but in actual feeding practice it has proved to be a satisfactory substitute. It may be fed in about the same amounts as corn silage and should be used in combination with hay and grain. The pomace may be fed fresh from the mill or preserved in a silo for future use.

FOR HEALTH'S SAKE PACK A GOOD LUNCH

Vacation days are over. The lunch box parade has begun again. Carefree children, happy and healthy from good food, sunshine and fresh air, must now spend many hours indoors and all too frequently eat a cold, poorly selected lunch.

An adequate lunch, containing one hot food either prepared at school or taken in a jar to be reheated, will be a big contribution toward making champions in the parade, says Miss Mary Vogle, home economics extension representative of Lawrence county.

Besides having a good lunch, the child shoud start the day with a wholesome breakfast and get an evening meal that contains one hot food. With at least eight hours of sleep added in his schedule the child has gone a long way toward getting his right, abundant health.

Types of foods the child eats are: First and foremost, foods for growth like milk, eggs and meat; second, foods that give "pep" and heat as cereals and butter; and lastly, foods that protect and regulate, such as fruits and vegetables.

A grade A lunch box contains milk; a substantial food, usually sandwiches with fillings made of egg, meat or cheese (growth foods); a juicy fruit or vegetable, and a simple dessert or sweet.

Some typical lunches are:

*Marks hot dishes.
No. 1—
*Cocoa (2 cups).
Meat and vegetable stew.
Filled cookies—fresh peach.
No. 2—
*Cream of corn soup.
Ground meat and relish sandwich.
Raw carrot strips.
Cup cake—fresh plum, grapes or pear.
Milk (1 cup).
No. 3—
Chopped ham and egg with lettuce sandwich.
Cottage cheese and jelly, on graham bread.
Celery—baked apple.
Milk (2 cups).
No. 4—
Cheese on whole wheat bread, sandwich.
Fresh tomato.
Milk (1 cup).
Baked custard.
Dates stuffed with marshmallows.

A surprise in the lunch box goes a long way toward making school day a success. Stuffed dates, filled cookies or even cookies in odd shapes certainly add variety.

Thermos bottles filled with hot cocoa or cream soups are appetizing.

Later in the year tomato juice might replace the raw tomato. Certainly some fruit juice occasionally in the lunch box would be a treat.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SOLVE WEED PROBLEM

At this time of the year there is nothing more unsightly in the lawn than those heavy rosettes of dandelions and plantains that are busily storing food in their extensive root systems in preparation for winter. There is no better time to do something about these pests than right now, and during the fall until snow flies.

"What shall I do—dig them out?" ask the harassed homeowner. This is the usual method of removing them but is by far the least effective because, if they are not removed properly they will come back as strong as ever. According to the latest information from the Pennsylvania State college, however, they can be easily removed permanently by a simple method, using a common cheap chemical. The method is the outcome of extensive weed control experiments in turf conducted by the United States Gold Association Green Section at Washington, D. C., and continued at the Pennsylvania State college.

Here is the method for removing occasional rosette weeds:

The chemical used is sodium arsenite, a common, cheap product ordinarily retailing at less than 25 cents a pound. It is a poison containing arsenic; hence, the ordinary methods of precaution should be used as for any poison. One part by weight of sodium arsenite is intimately mixed with 20 parts of fine dry sand and stored in a metal or glass container. A pinch, or about one-fourth teaspoonful, is applied directly to the crown of the weed. No more attention need be given to the pest unless the amount used is too small to kill the weed. If there is re-growth after two weeks, a second lighter application may be made. A small wooden spatula may be whittled out and used to apply the mixture. A little experience will determine the proper amount to use. Heavy, vigorous weeds need more than weak, puny ones. Dandelions require more than plantains.

If too much material is used, or if it is spilled, the grass will also be burned. Precautions must be observed in this regard also.

"ALL-BRAN KEEPS ME IN SHAPE EVERY DAY"

"When I had eaten a heavy breakfast, I would feel logy. After a couple of days of this, I would have to take a laxative.

"One morning I had a dish of ALL-BRAN. Believe me, it beats any laxative, as it keeps me in shape every day."—Wm. C. Billings, 1330 19th St., Denver, Colorado.

Why put up with half-sick days, when a delicious cereal will make you feel so good? Because ALL-BRAN has "bulk" which absorbs moisture within the body. Then gently sponges out your system, wipes away the listlessness, the "blues," the headaches.

Scientific tests prove this natural food is both safe and effective—worlds better than taking patent medicines. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed. Take it a week. If not satisfactory, your money will be refunded by the Kellogg Company.

Serve as a cereal or use in cooking. ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B and iron. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Wandering Cows Are Shocked Back

(International News Service)

AVON, Conn., Sept. 18.—The latest dairying wrinkle is the electrical pasture, whereby bossy is shocked back if she seeks forbidden greens.

C. F. Woodruf has encircled a five-acre lot of alfalfa with a single strand of barbed wire a couple of feet from the ground. This is connected with a current output which gives a grounded body coming into contact a mild shock. Cows usually stay away after the second experience.

It is not harmful, although a barefoot boy might get a shock. The shocking has not affected the milk output of the cows, Woodruf reports.

Thought Cheboygan Was Part Of China

(International News Service)

BAY CITY, Mich., Sept. 18.—Cheboygan, Michigan's famous summer resort at the tip of the Lower Peninsula which is now visited yearly by thousands of campers and tourists, was once thought to be a part of China.

Three hundred and two years ago Jean Nicolet, a French explorer searching for a short route to the fabulous Indies, stumbled on the straits which separate this region from historic Mackinac Island.

Nicolet, the first white man to visit the section, thought he had reached China. Donning a Chinese mandarin costume, he stepped from his canoe and held a great powwow with the "Chinese" Indians. Nicolet soon found out, however, that the short route to the Indies was still undiscovered.

Mollison Plans Atlantic Flight

Jim Mollison Hopes To Break Record Held By Richman And Merrill

(International News Service)

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Sept. 18—Aiming to break the 19-hour trans-Atlantic flight record set by Harry Richman and Dick Merrill, Jim Mollison was on his way to New York today aboard the liner Paris.

He hopes to pilot his speedy Bellenca monoplane "Flash" from Floyd Bennett field, New York, to Croydon airport, London in 17 hours.

Trial Flights

Then he plans, within 24 hours to dash to Capetown, South Africa, to regain the London-to Cape record recently lost by his wife, Mrs. Amy Johnson Mollison.

If all goes well on these hops—mere trial flights, according to Mollison—he will use the same American-built plane for a jaunt around the world at the equator.

Elks Obey Red Traffic Lights

(International News Service)

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 18.—The red light of traffic fame has found another use. It is now employed by residents of Clearwater, Wash., to keep elk herds from raiding stock yards and growing crops.

A. W. Shrodt, rancher, accidentally discovered that elk shied away from a red light. He hung one on the ranch fence and the elk stopped visiting it at night.

Other ranchers, who had vainly attempted to keep out foraging elk by use of dogs and scarecrows, also report good success from the use of red lights.

New Chapters Are Added To Black Legion

Dayton Dean, Cult Two-Gunman Adds New Bizarre Chapters To His Story

(International News Service)

DETROIT, Sept. 18.—Resuming the stand as the state's star witness in the Black Legion murder trial, Dayton Dean, cult two gun man, today added two new bizarre chapters to has amazing story of the death of Charles A. Poole, WPA worker.

He testified fellow cultists were ordered by "Col." Harvey Davis to shoot any police who stopped them on their way back to Detroit from the scene of the Poole murder.

Davis, he said, stood behind him with a gun "to see that orders were carried out" as Dean pumped eight bullets from two guns into Poole's body.

Except for these two disclosures, Dean's story, told for the third time in open court, was the same one he related unexpectedly during examination when he took the stand against the 12 defendants now on trial.

Mrs. Becky Poole, who denied vehemently on the stand yesterday that her husband had ever beaten her, was not present in court today. Dean has charged that Poole was slain after reports, later shown to be false, that Poole beat his wife.

After Dean's testimony today, the jury and the defendants were to be taken to Findlater hall where the plot to kill Poole allegedly originated.

Mongrel Worth As Much As Blue-Blood

(International News Service)

BEAVER FALLS, Pa.—"Mongrel or blue-blood, as far as the canine register is concerned, my dog is worth more than the finest blooded animal in the world."

This statement recently typified the feelings of Mrs. Cornelius Douds, who lives on a farm four miles from here.

When lightning struck a telephone wire and followed the line into the Douds hame, setting it on fire it was the children's pet that assumed grave responsibility.

Frightened and alone except for the children, Mrs. Douds snatched up the tots and took them to the barn, where she left them with the dog.

After running to summon aid, Mrs. Douds returned to find her home completely razed but the children safe and sound in the animal's care.

The stone was sent as the gift of the 1191st and together with one stone from each CCC camp will be used in construction of the memorial.

FREAK LIGHTNING LEFT WATER WELL COMPLETELY DRY

(International News Service)

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—Lost, strayed or stolen, one perfectly good water well.

Don't laugh.

That's exactly what happened here at Deputy Sheriff J. D. Conner's farm home this past week.

Some freak electricity must have been the cause, for it happened during a recent electrical storm. The well was functioning perfectly, according to Conner, when he went and drew a brimming bucketful up from the depths. Shortly afterward a bolt of lightning struck somewhere near the well, and the next time a water-seeker went to the scene there wasn't any well.

The cavity in the ground was still there unchanged, but there was no water at the bottom of it.

SCANTY FASHIONS MAKE SCANTY WORK

(International News Service)

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—It is not the so-called "machine age" that is throwing men out of work. Women's fashions have a lot to do with it.

Dr. R. O. Small, director of the Massachusetts vocational education department, and chairman of the conference on vocational educational problems, principles and trends held at Harvard university explained:

"A possible explanation of the depression in the textile industry is that it used to take three sheep working all of the time and an acre of cotton doing double duty to keep a woman clothed. Now, I believe, a silk worm does the whole job in his spare time."

Replica Of Oldest House To Serve As Soldier Memorial

(International News Service)

ALLENTOWN, Pa.—A replica of the oldest home in the county will be erected as a memorial museum to the late Gen. Harry C. Trexler on the Trexler-Lehigh county game preserve, officials of the preserve commission here decided. Trexler willed the 1,100 acre game preserve to the county.

The model for the memorial which was built in 1774 still stands near the Jordan Creek here. It was at first planned to remove the original house to the preserve, but its delapidated condition prevented this. The plans for the replica which have already been made follow exactly the exterior design of the original house and it will be furnished to conform with the voge at the time the original was built.

TRYING TO TEST IF SWEETHEART LOVED HER

(International News Service)

MATTAPOISETT, Mass., Sept. 18.—Barbara Counsell will never again be in a hurry to satisfy herself that her sweetheart loves her. The seven-year-old miss started a fire which almost gutted her home, when playmates told her that if she could keep a match burning to its other end, it would prove her sweetheart loved her. She has no sweetheart, but locking herself in her room she tried it anyhow. The fire was confined to her room.

Juliana and Her Fiance

No matter what the new ism is called, when you boil it down it means: "Let me boss."

POPE GIVES RADIO TO NEW GUINEA

(International News Service)

AUCKLAND, New Zealand—A radio—the gift of Pope Pius XI—is being taken back to New Guinea by Bishop Besters, Vicar Apostolic of Rabaul, who has left here on his way home after his first visit to Rome for 10 years.

"When I saw the Holy Father he asked whether my people had heard him speak on the radio," the bishop said. "I said they had no chance to hear the voice of the 'Great White Chief', as they call him, because they were too poor to buy a radio, so he gave me one himself."

All things are relative, and in some sections a stuck-up capitalist is anybody who says "my other pants".

Another painful fact is presented by the United States bureau of census. There are, says the U. S. B. of C., 71,000 dentists in America.

BABY IS FOUND ASLEEP ON ROAD

(International News Service)

MACHIA, Me., Sept. 18—Driving near here with his family, B. F. Small noticed something that appeared to be a bundle of rags in the middle of the road. Investigating he found it was a three year old child—Vivian Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winslow Davis, who had strayed from her home and becoming tired went to sleep in the middle of the road.

ELLWOOD HIGH TO OPEN GRID SEASON HERE ON SATURDAY

Wolverines Ready For Opening Tussle With Union Township High At 3:15 P. M.

SCHEDULE TOUGHEST EVER ATTEMPTED

ELLWOOD CITY, Sept. 18.—Beginning tomorrow afternoon at 3:15 o'clock Lincoln field will be the center of attraction for the next two months as Ellwood City high embarks on the toughest football schedule ever attempted here. Coach Davey Boyd's scrappy and hard fighting Union township high eleven will test the first grid machine of Coach Bill Mitchell.

The locals today conclude nearly four weeks of training. A dress rehearsal and signal drill is on tap for the afternoon and skull session in the evening. There will be three complete teams in full uniform tomorrow. They will be attired in last year's flashy royal blue uniforms with white stripes on the pants, and blue and white headgears. The entire squad is in fine physical condition. Since a regular game scrimmage session last Monday there has not been much heavy work this week. Coach Bill Mitchell and Asisstant "Dutch" Croft, have spent the time profitably in polishing and brushing up. Considerable time has been spent on blocking, charging and tackling. The tackling dummy has received overtime attention this week.

Veteran Team

The coaches have brought the squad along gradually and have reached a satisfactory peak to the present. Staunch followers of Ellwood high are enthused with the material and prospects for this season, despite a terrific schedule. The material is stated to be the best seen here in five years. The starting eleven as announced by Coach Mitchell will practically be a veteran combination, which has seven lettermen, six of whom were first stringers on last year's great eleven. The gaps have been filled to make one of the finest balanced teams that Ellwood high has ever placed on the field. The line has weight, power, range and experience. The backfield is unusual in that it will have weight, power and speed. In lining up the team has for veterans, Flannagan at left end, Daufen and H. Young at the tackles, Perry at left guard, and Pishioneri at center. The forward wall has been rounded out with Bartle at right end and Kellar right guard. The backfield has the veterans Bill Young and "Russia" Funari at the halfbacks, who proved a great combination last year; Koah at quarterback, and Galati at fullback. The line averages 170 pounds and the backfield 159 or a team average of 167 pounds. With this combination Ellwood may not win all their games, but one thing is certain, not very many touchdowns will be scored against it.

Reserves Good

But what brings joy to the hearts of the fans is the wealth of reserve material this year. There is little difference if any in the defensive ability of the first two lines. The weight is about the same. Fans agree that the second string backfield may not be so heavy or experienced, but it is more versatile. One hundred and thirty-five pound Tommy Jones at quarterback, has been the cause of considerable comment with his triple threat abilities and demonstrations. Jack Snare has proved an elusive ball carrier and pass receiver. Only Bill Young has a shade on Myers of Koppel, when it comes to line plunging. All three are expected to see plenty of action before the season is over. Ottavanio and Sam ends, Rupert and Santillo tackles, Gibb and Bonci guards, and Berendt center, have forced the varisty to extend themselves to hold their positions. As if this has not been cause enough for rejoicing by the coaches and fans alike, there is a third string line that has proved a hard nut to crack and loses little in weight to the other two teams. The backfield here is small and inexperienced. So no wonder Coach Mitchell announced that he would carry three full teams to all games.

Union Is Primed

Coach Boyd's proteges at Union township high have been training hard and quietly for the Ellwood game. The squad is primed and anxious to take another crack at the Wolverines. Ever since that 13-13 tie in Ellwood in 1931, Union has been a tough nut to crack. They have proved a scrappy and hard fighting outfit that would not say quit until the final whistle. They are respected here. The team with several veterans from last year back again, has come along better than expected and please its followers To date, King and Stickle have won the wing positions, Captain Fulton and Sypolt the tackles, Neal and Navarra the guards, Annerella center, Wotowitz quarterback, Ostrosky and Jaskolka the halfbacks, and Pattison fullback. This team has looked impressive in scrimmages. Wotowitz has been doing the kicking and Ostrosky and King have proved a dangerous pass combination.

Local fans have expressed their views that Ellwood's squad this year is deficient only in one department —and that is punting. The long distance booting and accuracy of Chet Bognosky will be sorely missed. Funari and Jones have been getting 35 and 40 yards. Flannagan has proved consistent at 45 and 50 yards, but needs improvement on accuracy. Besides it takes away deception when a lineman is called upon to punt. He is the placekicker for the point after touchdown.

Schedule Is Tough

Ellwood's schedule this year is the most ambitious ever undertaken. After Saturday's game they will meet a list of top-notch opponents and natural rivals. It is as follows:

Sept. 19—Union Township, here.
Sept. 26—Uniontown, away.
Oct. 3—Rochester, here.
Oct. 10—Butler, here.
Oct. 17—Farrell, here.

Oct. 31—Aliquippa, away.
Nov. 7—New Brighton, here.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA FEARS HITLER

Czechoslovakia's proximity to Germany

Czechoslovakia, prosperous middle-European republic, fears that Hitler's threats against the Soviet Union mean in reality that under this pretext the German dictator may try to gain control of its government. It is said that Hitler desires Czechoslovakia to become a Fascist state under Nazi dominion. The Fuehrer is believed to be militant now because France is occupied by the revolution in Spain and internal troubles.

ALCAZAR NOTED FOR CENTURIES

Fortress Blown Up Today Had Been "West Point Of Spain"

(International News Service)

MADRID, Sept. 18.—In an act of legalized sabotage and mass execution unprecedented in the annals of warfare, Spanish Leftists today consigned to oblivion one of the most historic and ancient edifices in the entire world—the Alcazar of Toledo.

And beneath its crumbling walls were buried the flower of Spanish youth.

Built originally as a Moorish castle on the site of a Roman fort, the Alcazar was converted some years ago into a training school for cadets aspiring to commissions in the Spanish army.

It became the west point of Spain —an institution comparable in the character of its students to the famous Citadel on the Hudson river in New York and the equally famous military college of St. Cyr in France.

It was to the Alcazar that the sons of Spanish nobles flocked in the glamorous years of the Bourbon monarchy in Spain, and even establishment of a Republican government left this classic fortress of military learning an aristocratic landmark in a nation torn by political dissension and in recent months by civil strife that for brutal manifestations lacks a par in modern times.

A famous critic says love is a myth. And "nerves" seem imaginary to people who never have had a case.

RECORD NUMBER OF DOGS LICENSED

HARRISBURG, Sept. 18—More dog licenses were issued by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture during the first 8 months of this year than during all of 1935.

Last year a total of 560,549 dogs were licensed in the state. On September 1 of this year there were 562,309 licensed dogs in Pennsylvania.

J. Hansell French secretary of Agriculture attributes the marked increase to the rigid enforcement of the dog laws by Dog Law Enforcement Division of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and to the manner in which local police officials and state game officers have co-operated with his department in ridding the State of stray dogs.

Hope To Get Plane Out Of Newfoundland Today, May Stop At Harbor Grace

NEW YORK CITY IS DESTINATION

(International News Service)

MUSGRAVE HARBOR, N. F., Sept. 18.—In all probability Harry Richman and Dick Merrill, trans-Atlantic flyers, will hop off from this tiny fishing village, where they have been marooned since Monday, some time today.

They expect to land at Harbor Grace and may remain there overnight, taking off for New York and the completion of their round-trip hop to England, some time Saturday.

Constitution Day Is Observed Here

Republican Women Have Program At The Castleton Thursday

Constitution Day was observed by the Republican Women in New Castle Thursday afternoon in the headquarters in The Castleton Hotel when a program was presented. Two speakers were heard, Attorney Robert McKinley, of Pittsburgh and Donald Stewart of Independence, Kansas. Charles A. Crowl presided as chairman and the invocation was officered by Dr. C. C. Green.

Mr. Stewart was the first speaker. He is a neighbor of Governor Alf M. Landon's in Independence and he spoke of Governor Landon not so much as a candidate but as a good neighbor and a fine citizen. He urged his listenerers to discard any silly rumors that might be spread in the east over the attitude towards Governor Landon in his home state. "Kansas is for Landon and the returns on November 3 will be an overwhelming testimonial for him," said Stewart.

Mr. McKinley has recently returned from Spain where he was on a tour. Crossing from France into Spain through Irun they soon encountered the civil war which has been raging in Spain for weeks. Mr. McKinley described the scenes of horror he witnessed, the fighting in the streets and the carnage which has taken place. He compared the conditions in Spain and reminded his listeners that the United States was safe because of its constitution. Mrs. Eva Woods gave a "tribute to the flag.." About 125 were in attendance.

Retired Jail Censor Tells Of Experiences

Had To Read "Between Lines" In Many Messages Sent Out

(International News Service)

CANON CITY, Colo.—The heartbreaks, the hopes, the aspirations of others passed before the eyes of William (Judge) Thomas for 17 years.

"It's been interesting work," Thomas said when he retired recently after 25 years as an employe of the Colorado state penitentiary here, 17 of which were spent reading prisoners' mail.

His official duties during those years consisted of scrutinizing mail going in and out of the prison walls.

"People who write convicts know their letters are going to be inspected," Thomas pointed out. "When they want to convey contraband information they have to be subtle.

"But after a number of years, the subtleties become pretty obvious. I guess I'm no different from the mail censors in other penitentiaries in being able to spot a phony letter pretty quickly."

That ability was generally credited with preventing many a prison break during the years he censored the letters.

"The car is dark blue," one letter to a convict said. "It has more speed and pep than any car on the road. We just can't wait until we drive it up to Canon City to visit you. It goes so fast that we are almost sure we will be able to be at Canon City by 11:30 Sunday morning."

Now it is perfectly natural for people to be enthusiastic about a new car, Thomas reasoned. But why go into detail concerning time of arrival.

Thomas questioned the prisoner. He confessed an escape plot. A rope ladder was found in his cell.

"It is surprising how naive some of the letters have been," Thomas observed. "The attempts to use a code are often so crude. A message will be written with some of the letters larger than others. The larger ones will spell out a message of their own.

"Detecting codes, even the really good ones, is not so difficult. Even when you can't solve the code, you can tell there is one. Questioning the prisoners usually brings a confession."

New Building Being Planned

Gathering in the home of President Frank Gillest, 810 Cunningham avenue, Thursday evening, the building fund committee of the Unione Calabro-America, Poeta Franco Berardelli, reported that $900 has been raised towards the construction of a new building.

Next spring the organization will start erecting a building at 213-215 Division street, President Gillest stated. At the present time the organization meets at 211 Division street.

Sunday afternoon officers of the local club will attend a mass meeting in Butler, where approximately 100 Butler residents will be initiated into the local organization.

FARMER'S PRIZE WATERMELON HAD HANDLES ON IT

(International News Service)

GOULD, Ark.—Dave Crockett may not be the star farmer of America, but he's just about aces in these parts for raising freak fruits.

He gave the entire county something to look at in amazement when he produced Siamese twin cantaloupes, just to prove that the critters sometime grow that way.

But, heck, that was nothing.

The fruit, a small but well formed specimen of the Dixie Queen variety, is all ready to be carried home from the market.

It grew into an oblong opening in a section of wire fencing eight feet from the home watermelon hill, and the only way to get the watermelon out was to take a chunk of fence along as handle.

That's what Farmer Crockett did.

To tell the truth, however, the rest of the melons in Crockett's patch will have to be transported by hand.

Pittsburgh Man Run Over By Own Auto

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 18.—George Smith, 29, was dragged 100 feet and probably fatally injured today when he was run over by his car which he was cranking while it was in gear, police reported.

His step-brother, who was working on the gas accelerator, jumped to safety.

SHE'S ONLY GIRL IN FARMING CLASS

STEUBENVILLE, O., Sept. 18.—When Virginia Powell, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Powell, Wintersville, O., near here, enrolls in the agricultural college at Ohio State university September 22, she will be the only co-ed in a class of 300.

New Proposal By Employes

Request Right To Share In Hiring And Firing Of Fellow Workers

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 18.—A formal request for the right to share in the hiring and firing of fellow workers was made today by 36 employe representatives who said they spoke for 26,000 employes in 12 sheet and tin mills of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation.

Submitted to the management, the new and totally unexpected proposal included demands for a general wage increase ranging from 8 to 25 per cent, increased pension rates and longer vacations with pay. The management would not comment on the new demands.

Culminating a three-day conference with superintendents and managers, the employes representatives asked a flat increase of one dollar a day for all workers receiving more than $5 a day and an increase for lower paid workers to bring their wage up to a $5 minimum.

SPANISH CIVIL WAR DEVELOPS ON SOUTH COAST

(International News Service)

GIBRALTAR, Sept. 18.—The Spanish civil war suddenly burst into bloody activity along the southern coast today with bitter street fighting in the important port of Malaga and heavy shelling at other points.

The British warship Queen Elizabeth was rushed to Malaga to protect British interests. Many casualties were reported there, and many buildings were fired.

The governor of Malaga was reported to have appealed urgently to the Madrid government for reinforcements. Six hundred of the local leftist militia were reported to be "prepared to surrender" to insurgents pressing on toward the city.

It was believed much of the street fighting was between quarreling leftist factions.

Armed loyalist trawlers, taking advantage of a dense fog which hung about the Straits of Gibraltar, fired 20 shots at the town of Guadiaro La Atunara, just a few miles northeast of Gibraltar.

Landon Arouses Wild Enthusiasm Among Young Republicans

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

TOPEKA, Kas., Sept. 18.—Branding the Roosevelt regime with believing "there is no future for this country," Gov. Alfred M. Landon today pledged a wildly enthusiastic audience of 3,000 Young Republicans an administration under which "America will once agian be a nation where youth can be confident of its future."

The Republican nominee, his voice frequently choking with emotion, declared the youth of America "will never surrender liberty for a phantom security" but asserted "we must convince them that our form of government has not failed." He pledged prompt correction of "abuses in the economic system" and urged his young listeners to carry a message to the nation that "we can eliminate unemployment."

Young People Are Victims.

Landon warned business leaders that the "saddest victims of the depression" were those young people who have never had a job, due to the seven-year depression. It is this group of Americans, he added, whose "faith in the eternal value of human liberty" must be maintained.

The governor delivered a fighting speech to a militant group of Young Republicans, who gathered here from every corner of the nation to receive "orders" for the campaign. They did. The "orders" were these:

"To the young voters among your friends and neighbors, I ask you to take this message:

"Tell them the choice before this country in this campaign is not whether there have been abuses in the economic system that need to be corrected. We know that there are such abuses and we propose to do all that is within the constitutional power of the government to eliminate them. The issue is not whether the intentions of the present administartion are good or bad.

Real Issue Seen.

"The real issue as we see it is this: The present administration apparently believes that there is no future for this country. It has accepted the idea that we have reached our peak—that ahead of us is a large standing army of unemployed; that, in consequence, the government must play a greater and greater part in managing the details of our daily lives instead of confining itself to the expanding field of regulation in the public interest.

"The Republican party, on the other hand, utterly rejects this philosophy. It believes that America still is on the upgrade, that we can eliminate unemployment, that the government should tighten the rules governing business, but should not attempt to manage business; that, in a word, America will once again be a nation where youth can be confident of its future."

Speaks In Audtororium

Landon spoke to the young Republicans in a local auditorium but his address was broadcast to the nation. He began by explaining America was made over in every generation, "not from blue prints in Washington" but by "the high hopes and the honest toil of the American people."

"Your presence here today," he said, "is proof that you are following in the footsteps of the generations of youth that have built America. It is proof that young America is not asleep. It is proof that the youth of this land is not willing to surrender liberty for a phantom security. I welcome you to the comradeship of a great cause."

Declaring "this is no ordinary campaign," he said the great issue confronting the people was "the kind of government and the kind of country we are to have in the years to come." It is a battle, he said, over the powers to be exercised by the federal government.

"The question raised by this issue," he added, "what powers the government shall have and what powers it shall not have, can be the difference between representative government and organized authority wielded by one man.

"Once that is clearly understood by the voters of this country, I have no doubt as to the results."

Picturing the "horrible suffering and distress of continued enemployment," Landon pointed out that factories are idle and fields uncultivated under the Roosevelt administration "when millions of our fellow citizens are in need of food and clothing."

"It is mighty hard for anybody to maintain courage and confidence in the face of such conditions," he warned, "and this should be borne in mind by every employer."

May Extend Jap Beetle Quarantine

Beetles Found In Traps At Sharon And Warren This Summer

HARRISBURG, Sept. 18.—Sharon and Warren and some surrounding areas may be placed under the Japanese beetle quarantine next year as the result of beetle trapping activities by the United States and Pennsylvania Departments of Agriculture this year. These departments will decide later as to what steps will be taken in these two towns.

Ten beetles were trapped in Sharon and an equal number in Warren. Last year one beetle was found in Warren and none in Sharon.

From 1,600 traps placed in Erie this year by National Youth Administration boys, only 43 beetles were taken up to September 2. Although more traps were in use this year fewer beetles were found in Erie county than in several years.

Every effort is being made to protect the rich Erie fruit belt from a serious invasion of the destructive Japanese beetle. So far these efforts have been successful.

New Destroyer Launched Today

(International News Service)

CAMDEN, N. J., Sept. 18.—The newly-constructed destroyer Winslow, one of four built here for the government, slid down the ways of the New York shipbuilding corporation's yard today.

The vessel, with an 1,850-ton displacement, was named in memory of Rear Admiral John A. Winslow, Mexican and Civil wars' hero. The Winslow will be commissioned next winter.

PLAN AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK

HARRISBURG, Sept. 18.—American Education Week, which is observed annually to inform the public of the needs, aims and achievements of the schools, will be observed this year from Monday, November 9, to Sunday, November 15.

American Education Week has become more wide-spread each year since its inauguration in 1921.

For the closing session a luncheon has been arranged at the Hotel Penn-Harris at noon on Thursday. Toastmaster for this occasion will be Dr. Ade. Governor George H. Earle will be presented to the congress and will extend greetings to the assembly. Dr. John W. Studebaker, United States Commissioner of Education, will address the congress at the education meeting.

STRESS IDEAL OF LIBERTY STATUE

HARRISBURG, Sept. 18.—October 28 marks the 50th anniversary of the dedication of the Statue of Liberty standing on Bedloe's Island in New York harbor.

Plans are afoot, according to Dr. Lester K. Ade, superintendent of the Department of Public Instruction, in many of the schools of the state to celebrate the occasion by appropriate exercises and programs. The National Park service of the United States Department of the Interior, which is sponsoring the observance, is emphasizing the ideal significance of the statue rather than the structure or the persons associated with it.

FARM PRICE INDEX RISES FIVE POINTS

HARRISBURG, Sept. 18.—August brought a five-point rise in the purchasing power of the American farmer and a three-point rise in the index of farm prices in Pennsylvania, J. Hansell French, Secretary of Agriculture, announced today. The August index was 117, against a July index of 114.

Prices for wheat, corn, oats, barley, rye, buckwheat, hay, hogs, turkeys, milk, butter, butterfat and eggs increased. Prices for beef cattle, veal calves, horses and mules remained stationary. There was a slight drop in prices paid farmers for potatoes, apples, sheep, lambs, milk cows, chickens and wool.

TELL STUDENTS HOW TO EARN EDUCATION

HARRISBURG, Sept. 18.—The Department of Public Instruction is preparing a bulletin entitled "Scholarships and Opportunities for Self-Help in Pennsylvania Colleges and Universities."

For each of the 70 institutions treated in the bulletin which has been prepared under the supervision of James G. Pentz, chief of the Pre-professional Credentials Division, there is presented the location of the college, annual tuition rate, type of institution, scholarships available and opportunities for self-help. The bulletin covers liberal arts colleges as well as the State Teachers colleges in the Commonwealth.

More Highways To Be Improved

Every Mile Of Township And State Road Will Be Improved

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Sept. 18.—Every mile of township and state road in Pennsylvania will become soon an improved highway, Secretary of Highways Warren Van Dyke said today, announcing the department has enlarged its stabilized road program to include all roads not now improved.

The stabilized road program, he said, is meeting with success and the highway department now proposes to improve not only the more than 10,000 miles of unimproved highways on the main state system but also on the more than 46,000 miles of township roads.

Stabilized roads are constructed of earth, gravel and rock salt. The dirt and gravel are analyzed by the department's laboratory and the mixture is graded and compacted after receiving its treatment with the salt or calcuim chloride, depending on local conditions. This type of road, Secretary Van Dyke said, is cheaper by far both in construction and maintenance than any other type.

"This program," he said, "means that the farmer will get good roads, lots of them and that he can really be got out of the mud."

Slacks with matching short jackets or shirts are being worn at the exclusive beaches.

ASSERTS HOBO IS REGULAR TRADESMAN

GALION, O., Sept. 18—A hobo is not a tramp; he is a tradesman who goes about the country seeking opportunity wherever it may be.

So says William Burkley 72, respected Galion butcher who has plied his trade for 55 years, but who was once a hobo.

Burkley came to this country from Germany when he was 15 years old. He had $40 and the wander-lust, and traveled as a hobo for a number of years, working his trade for short periods in Pittsburgh, Bridgeport, O., Council Bluffs, Ia., Chicago, Toledo, and Cincinnati.

Hohos, according to Burkley, are a great help in the handling of grain and fruit crops in different parts of the country and fit themselves into individual roles in times of emergency.

SCHOOLS TO MARK ROOSEVELT DAY

HARRISBURG, Sept. 18.—Tuesday, October 27, will mark the 78th anniversary of the birth of Theodore Roosevelt.

Schools throughout the state, according to Dr. Lester K. Ade, superintendent of the Department of Public Instruction, are planning appropriate exercises to honor the memory of this great American.

DRUNKEN DRIVER SOAKED IN OHIO

DEFINANCE, O., Sept. 18—Carl O Degler, 48 farmer living near here, will not drive while intoxicated for at least six years. In fact, he will not drive at all for six years if he obeys the sentence given him by Mayor C. Krutsch, of Defiance.

Dagler was arrested recently at his farm home after his auto had collided with one driven by Mrs. Harry Stigman, 32, of Defiance at a downtown intersection here.

He pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated and leaving the scene of an accident when arraigned before the mayor. In addition to his driving right suspension, he was fined a total of $150 plus $12.40 costs, ordered to pay for the damage to Mrs. Stigman's car and $40.20 balance on a fine levied against him in 1932.

SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

(Gathered and Edited by Student Reporters)

NEW BOOKS IN LIBRARY

Miss Helen Westlake, librarian of the Senior high school, announces that there are about two hundred new books in the library this semester. The books are of the reference, fiction, and non-fiction type, and will be of use in the various departments of the school.

VARGO NEW MAJOR

Hall patrol duties were resumed early this week under the supervision of Mrs. Sara S. McCune. George Vargo has been named as major for the staff, and the following persons are in charge during the different periods in the day: Anthony Lombardo, William Tetlow, George Weiker, Charles Twaddle, Jack McConahy, Bill Montanary, George Swisher, Joe Anderson and Louis Turk.

Each of the period captains will choose his own squad with the approval of Mrs. McCune, and within the next week the corps should be working sufficiently to keep the halls clear of persons not belonging there.

GIRLS ORGANIZE

Girls' gym and physiology classes under the direction of Miss Sarah McGoun will soon be under way. Miss McGoun has already named the various squad leaders for the different periods throughout the day, and the girls will be assigned to their classes as soon as possible.

IN HOSPITAL

Tom Twaddle, a member of the Senior A class of the high school, is confined to the Jameson Memorial hospital where, he underwent an appendicitis operation recently.

LARGE SUPPORT SHOWN

A record crowd of approximately 2,200 students attended last week's game. About half of this number were using student season tickets. It is hoped that the students will continue to back the team in this way.

JUNIOR VARSITY MEETS

The athletic department of the Senior high school is endeavoring to organize a junior varsity team, to play in preliminary games at the stadium this year. A call was put out on Monday, and about 150 boys reported to the auditorium. Fifty of them have thus far been equipped, and as there is a lot of good material among the boys, quite a nice team should be the result.

Ralph H. Gardner, faculty athletic manager, has stated that he is planning a six-game season for the juniors and hopes to get them started in a short time.

PRACTICING OPERETTA

As a variation from the usual type of school operetta, the chorus of the senior high school has been practicing an operetta entitled "Tune In."

It is a modern comedy with a radio station as a setting, and is under the direction of Prof. Joseph Replogle, who states that it will undoubtedly be presented the latter part of October or the first of November.

Any student possessing vocal talent acn be used, as the chorus is not as large this semester as usual.

G. R. CABINET MEETING

Tuesday afternoon the Girl Reserve cabinet held a brief meeting. The main discussion at this time was the planning for a membership drive which will take place in a couple of weeks.

The second Tuesday of every month was set aside as a standing date for all cabinet meetings.

Reckless Driving From Wheelchair

(International News Service)

SALEM, O.—When Fred Black of Kittanning, Pa., a transient, was brought to police headquarters here on a charge of driving while intoxicated, he presented a problem.

He admitted before Mayor George Harroff that he was a drunken driver, but the mayor didn't know how to dispose of the case.

For, instead of driving an automobile, Black, a cripple, had been operating his hand-propelled wheelchair.

The mayor finally dismissed the case when Black offered to leave town immediately. A passing truck driver picked him up—wheelchair and all.

JOBLESS FATHER DANCES TO FAME ON HIS FINGERS

(International News Service)

LONDON—John Blockley father of a large family, could not dance if his life depended upon it—yet he is already winning fame here as the "finger-tip Fred Astaire."

Blockley was practically destitute when he entered a talent contest organized by Roy Fox, popular band-leader here.

He won the contest, and so distinguished himself that Fox put him into his stage show.

Blockley is known as the "finger-tip Astaire" because he does with his fingers what Fred Astaire does with his feet.

Put a plain wooden board in front of him and he will tap out on it any rhythm requested—rumba, fox-trot, or tango.

He actually makes one believe that a master dancer is at work.

This man, with his lightning, rhythmic fingers, had spent days and nights in vain search for work of any kind—even the hardest manual labor. Now he is on e road to fame.

How could the political writer do his job if nobody had invented the phrase, "the turn of the century"?

Drought Has Silver Lining For Colorado

Big Increase In Prices Of Crops Raised Is Now Indicated

(International News Service)

DENVER.—Millions of dollars will pour into Colorado this fall as the result of the drought, according to a crop report released by the United States Department of Agriculture office in Denver.

The Colorado potato crop alone is expected to bring into the state some $25,000,000. Potatoes last year were selling around 60 cents a bushel, and this year the price is around $1.50 a bushel and may go higher.

F. K. Reed, chief of the Agriculture Department in Denver characterized irrigated sections of Colorado this year as "the garden spots of the country."

The total crop valuation in Colorado this year is expected to be much greater than a year ago.

While the total valuation will be greater, the production of principal grain crops, corn, wheat, oats and barley dropped 9,415,000 bushels, or 28 per cent, from the prospective production on July 1.

In his report, Reed says: "The decline for Colorado was much less extensive than that recorded for states to the east. From the standpoint of agricultural income, the rise in prices during July more than offset the loss resulting from smaller volume production.

"The value of irrigation has again demonstrated its advantages in that crops grown on irrigated land showed practically no change from the estimates made a month ago."

Estimates of production are as follows:

Corn production declined from around 13,000,000 bushels to slightly more than 5,000,000 bushels; winter wheat production is unchanged; spring wheat production declined around 1,000,000 bushels, oats production is estimated at 4,250,000 bushels compared with 4,335,000 bushels in July.

The estimated potato crop is only a little lower than the five-year average but around 4,000,000 bushels lower than last year, which was a large crop.

Sugar-beet production is estimated at 2,088,000 tons, which is greater than last year.

All fruit production in the state is expected to be good with the exception of cherries and pears. Production of principal fruit crops this year as compared with last year is as follows:

Total apples, this year, 1,690,000 bushels, compared with 1,590,000 a year age; peaches, 1,166,000 bushels as against 1,276,000 bushels; pears, 296,000 against 351,000 and cherries, 810 tons this year as compared to 4,662 tons last year.

BOY GETS STUNG BY "STINGLESS" BEES

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA—They may have been "stingless" bees to their owner but to 4-year-old Ilena Davis, of Wayne, Pa., they stung like any other bees.

Ilena was with a group of visitors listening to Henry Brown, developer of the "stingless" bees, explain how he had crossed Cyprian and Italian insects to produce a non-aggressive type of bee when the child yelled out:

"It may be stingless, but it's bite hurts just the same as any other bee."

Ilena, it developed, had really been stung, much to Brown's surprise and consternation.

Has Home-Made Air-Conditioning

(International News Service)

CINCINNATI, O.—Crawford Flaherty, 14, a mechanically-minded youngster, has solved the problem of restful sleep during heat waves.

The plan, which the lad insists is very simple, was inspired by movies of airplanes being put through tests in wind tunnels:

Crawford has this formula:

Stretch a sheet over the bed, fastening it to the bedposts. Place an electric fan at the foot of the bed, tilting so that the breeze so created will strike the suspended sheet.

He guarantees you will sleep in this home-made air conditioned comfort.

HASN'T MISSED LODGE IN 54 YEARS

(International News Service)

GALLIPOLIS, O.—Ninety-two year-old Thomas Clark of near-by Thurman, the patriarch of his home community, claims an all-Ohio record for attending the Masonic lodge there for 54 years without missing a meeting.

A member of Company F, 141st Ohio Voluntary infantry during the Civil War, he has outlived every member of the W. S. Hancock post No. 561, Grand Army of the Republic, at Thurman. The only other member of his war-time company now alive is Thomas Zimmerman, 92, Huntington, W. Va.

Still enjoying excellent health, sight and hearing, Clark has never voted any but the Republican ticket.

New Buildings Displacing Little Red School Houses

Consolidation Of Schools In Working Educational Changes

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—The little red schoolhouse isn't a little red schoolhouse any more.

It's going, going, and in hundreds of communities has gone, giving way to new and modern school plants which, under consolidation of thinly populated districts, are serving where several one-room buildings formerly were required.

The Office of Education of the Interior Department reports that more than 4,000 new school buildings have been constructed throughout the country in the last three years, providing 30,000 classrooms for more than 1,000,000 pupils in elementary and secondary grades.

In more than 40 per cent of the rural schools before the consolidation program, less than 50 students per school were enrolled, according to the office of education. In 35 per cent, enrollments numbered between 51 and 100 students, and in 15 per cent, enrollments were from 100 to 150.

Only one or two teachers were attempting to give four-year high school courses in 1,500 country high schools, teaching all subjects.

As an example of school district consolidations, the office of education cited the Grant Union high school district of North Sacramento, Cal.

Formerly more than 500 school children of North Sacramento, Del, Paso, Rio Linda and Robla daily had to cross the American river and dangerous highways, to attend school in Sacramento.

Now the first unit of a district high school has been completed, comprising three rooms, and bonds for a 14-room addition, to accommodate 1,000 students, have been voted. Meanwhile students are studying in a temporary building. PWA made a $93,736 grant and $129,584 loan toward the school, the district adding $69,605.

REUNION VIA HEAT

(International News Service)

LINTON, Ind.—The recent heat wave produced a family reunion here. After newspapers carried accounts of Mrs. Sarah Smith finding a soft-boiled egg cooked in a nest by the sun, she received a letter from Mrs. Ann Nuter, of Noblesville, a cousin, whose whereabouts had been unknown to her for 12 years.

NEW DRIVE ON RABBITS

GREELEY, Colo.—Willard Darling, a Greeley printer, believes he has hit upon an entirely new method of hunting rabbits. Guns and dogs are unnecessary, he declared. Teeing off on the Windsor golf course here, he made a long drive. He found his ball had struck a cottontail hiding in the grass and killed it.

NEW CASTLE AND BUTLER PLAY HERE TONIGHT

Butler High Will Outweigh Locals In Grid Battle

New Castle High "Red Hurricane" Ready For Second Game Of Season; Two Regulars, Roussos and Perrett, Missing From Lineup; Butler High Will Bring Strong Team Here; Both Teams Won Opening Games; Butler Will Send Big Crowd Here For Annual Contest; Game Kickoff Is Set For 8 P. M.

BUTLER HIGH school football team, with a group of young giants, steamed into New Castle today to do battle tonight at 8 o'clock with New Castle high school "Red Hurricane." Taggart Stadium gates will be open at 7 o'clock and by game time the stands should be well filled for the annual battle of the ancient rivals.

Head Coach Phil Bridenbaugh gave the New Castle boys the final once-over last night under the flood-lights and pronounced them ready for the tough game that awaits them at the hands of the Coach Heinzer squad from Butler, Pa. This is perhaps one of the biggest teams that Heinzer has ever had at Butler and one of the smartest teams from a veteran standpoint.

Plenty Of Veterans

There reposes in the hearts of the Butler boys a keen desire to upset the New Castle apple-cart, and if ever a team had a good chance to do it, this Blue and Gold horde does tonight. New Castle is somewhat crippled for the second encounter of the year. Socrates Roussos, tackle, has tonsilitis, and Dudey Perrett, a regular halfback, has a cracked wrist.

It will be seven Butler veterans of last year against nine of the New Castle regulars of the 1935 season. Butler will outweigh New Castle nearly five pounds to the man. The Butler team averages 170 as a whole, the line does 177 and the backfield 155. DeFogie, the midget signal barker who tips the beams at exactly 125, brings the backfield average down.

Friendly Rivals

The New Castle team averages about 166, or they did for the game last week, but Roussos with his 190 pounds, will not be in the game, and Perrett with his 165 will not be in the game. In their stead will be Ryglinski who goes about 180, and Mort who touches the scales at 144.

There is plenty of friendly rivalry between the two teams. Foes for many years in football and basketball, but Butler has never won very many football games. A few years ago Butler held the locals to a 0-0 score, this being the closest they have come to victory since Coach Bridenbaugh has been here.

Cox And Mort

Leroy Cox, the colored speedster who has been suffering with bad ankles for the past few weeks, is rarin' to go tonight. Cox is a veteran in the backfield, but injuries kept him on the sidelines for many games last year. With Cox and Mort running the ends, the Butler boys are going to be kept busy. This pair of fleet-footed halfbacks will outdistance any of the local boys. Once in the open and both boys are hard to catch.

Domenick "Gabby" DeCaprio will again do the line bucking and can be relied upon when the yards are needed. He is a veteran and a fine fullback. The signal barking job will be filled by Dal Mumford, one of the shrewdest of the shrewd. His judgment in the Braddock game was unquestioned. He is a real field general.

Giant Tackles

The two giant Butler tackles Gladis 215 and Hughes, will no doubt make their presence felt in the line. This pair looked very good against Evans City. They are all set to stop DeCaprio, Cox and Mort tonight. Ryglinski and Leonard will have their hands full in trying to keep these two men inactive.

In event of good weather the stands will no doubt fill very rapidly. The Butler fans believe that maybe this is the year, and they want to sit in on the party when a Butler team can lick a Bridenbaugh coached machine. Several hundred tickets have been disposed of in Butler, and many will wait and buy tickets here. The entire western bleachers have been reserved for the visitors.

Expect Big Crowd

Faculty Manager Ralph H. Gardner today announced a special gate for the New Castle High students at the northern end of the stadium, in addition to the gate used last week. There should not be any confusion tonight.

The officials for the game are well recognized in this section. Earl Cavanaugh will handle the referee whistle, Davey Fawcett will blow the umpires siren and Heinie Ball will handle the stick.

Encouraged by the crowd of over 5,000 that witnessed the first game the New Castle High officials are looking for a bigger crowd tonight, as Butler will no doubt send more supporters here than Braddock did.

Mustangs Are Favored To Win

Southern Methodist University Is Expected To Repeat Conference Championship

SEVERAL TEAMS TO CAUSE TROUBLE

(International News Service)

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 18.—Opening of the 1936 football playing season in the Southwestern conference this and next week-ends finds the seven squads lined up much the same as they were at the close of last year's schedule They will take up about as they left off as losses of stars through graduation and other causes and replacements in sight, on paper at least, put them in about the same relative places.

Though they have the jinx of "never a conference championship repeater" to face, the Southern Methodist university Mustangs here are early favorites to repeat a champion year. Coach Matty Bell boasts the heftiest squad he has ever had in years of coaching college football. Such lettermen as Shuford, Sprague and Finley have returned along with a promising handful of sophomores who will take the places of such stars as Bobby Wilson. One of the most promising is Jack Morrison, son of the famous S. M. U. coach, Ray Morrison, who is at Vanderbilt.

Texas Christian university, Fort Worth, was in second place last year and though Coach Dutch Meyer says he has a better-balanced squad, football possibilties are not so bright at the Fort Worth institution. Meyer has 45 men working out, with 16 lettermen and "good men three deep," he says.

Early season dope points to Baylor university, Waco, as T. C. U.'s most serious contender for second place honors. In addition to a squad of 46 men, Coach Morley Jennings can throw his 1935 backfield combination into play—Russell, Gernand, Masters and Brazell. Last year the Baylor team was one of the greenest in the field, but the youngsters gave the other teams fits. This year, Jennings has a seasoned squad and expects to make the most of it.

The other four schools in the conference were rather weak last year and there is no indication they will be otherwise during 1936.

However, A. and M. college, College Station, seems to be a standout in this group. Coach Homer Norton has 50 men working out twice daily and they are farther advanced than usual after only a week of practice. Pitner, a backfield ace, has returned as the brightest letterman and Dick Todd, from a class B high school, looks like the best prospect of the sophomore backfield material.

Then comes Texas university, Austin, where Coach Jack Chevigny, though more than 5,000 students annually enroll in the state university, seldom has more material to work with than smaller schools and just as seldom has outstanding teams. This year the squad is ordinary. Fifty-three men reported for practice and Chevigny has whipped them into "good condition".

Dunmore Trio May Win Berths

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Sept. 18.—Three Nittany backfield players who once wore the colors of Dunmore High School, are almost certain to take the field for Penn State when the Lion eleven opens its season against Muhlenberg on October 3.

Tommy Silvano, fullback; Red O'Hora, quarterback; and Sammy Donato, blocking halfback, are the trio of Lion stalwarts who hail from the same town. Another Dunmorean, Joe Battaglia, has an excellent chance to land a regular guard berth, while Captain Cherundolo, center, lives in Old Forge, only a few miles away.

Silvano and O'Hora, are holdovers from last year's team. Donato, who is Eastern intercollegiate boxing champion in the welterweight class, is said to be the hardest tackler and one of the most efficient blockers on the squad. He started the early games as a sophomore last season, but injuries prevented his playing regularly in the later contests.

Winner May Meet Champion

Grandovitch And Getz Slated For Tough Bout Monday

AL ROTHBERG TO WRESTLE JENSEN

Although nothing is certain nowadays, indications point to the winner of the wrestling joust between Leon Grandovitch and Al Getz at the Arena Gardens Monday evening meeting Everett Marshall, recognized in many states as the world's best heavyweight wrestler here within the near future.

Grandovitch has won several matches here and though he has roughed up opponents, the fact remains he can wrestle. Al Getz, an importation from Germany, whom was taught holds while a member of the Nazi Athletic Corps, lost on a foul last Monday night.

Getz displayed a lot of rough wrestling and after tossing Larry Bennett, of Portland, Ore., out of the ring, mixed it up with the Oregon heavyweight near the ring. According to the reporter who covered the bout, Getz showed a keen aptitude for delivering rabbit punches.

Good Semi-Final Bout

In the semi-final Al Rothberg, Denver, Colo., conqueror of Abe Coleman, of New York, and quite a few others known well in wrestling, will attempt to win his second match here. His opponent will be Larry Jensen who made short work of Whitey Govro last Monday night.

In his initial bout here Rothberg assimilated quite a lot of punishment from King Kong before he pinned the hairy one's shoulders to the mat. When the Denver heavyweight pinned King Kong to the mat the fans went wild, the victory having proved quite popular.

Eddie Conley, who has werstled here time and again, will take on Bob Blake. Eddie is another tough hombre who has made himself one of the chaps that the fans like to booh because he goes in for rough stuff. He formerly was a fighter but Blake expects to give Eddie a "going over" in the second preliminary.

Tony Marchoni, another well-liked wrestler, will meet Wallick one of the best wrestlers at his weight. Marchoni's power is in his legs. He usually goes best after being warmed up and many times after being the apparent loser, has come on to win the bout.

The bouts will be held at the Arena Gardens.

Plan To Hold Fights At Gardens

It was announced today that boxing will be staged in the Arena Gardens beginning next month. Ed. Fritz will make the matches and among the fighters to be shown in one of the first shows will be Joey Evans, the flashy Ellwood City junior lightweight who staged some good fights in Philadelphia after turning professional.

No matter how much some women reduce themselves they'll never be bargains.

College Football Doings In Brief

(International News Service)

VILLANOVA, Pa., Sept. 18.—Francis Nye, speedy 180-pounder from Harrisburg, and Bill Christopher, veteran wildcat star, today were battling for the coveted quarterback berth on Coach Clipper Smith's Villanova eleven.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18.—Pop Warner will start a veteran Temple team against St. Joseph's tonight in the opening game of the 1936 season. The only inexperienced man in the lineup will be Allan Sturges, 198-pound sophomore tackle, and a substitute for Hal Zastrow, a veteran.

MINISINK HILLS, Pa., Sept. 18. Drills in the fundamentals engaged Penn's football forces at the preseason training base here today. Preparations for the season's opener with Lafayette thus far has been light, with little live tackling. In a day or two the boys are going to don the heavies and get down to rough routine.

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Sept. 18.—Despite the fact he has only 21 men in uniform as the third week of practice got under way, Coach Dike Beede of Geneva college expressed confidence today his tiny, 132-pound quarterback, Dominic Roselli, will pilot the Covenanters through a successful season.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 18.—Coach Wally Steffen today paid careful attention to the training activities of Ray Carnelly, angular Beaver Falls lad, hopeful of an answer to Carnegie Tech's quarterback troubles. Yesterday he ran the first team through a lengthy signal drill and appeared well pleased with the snap and vigor displayed.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 18.—Duquesne mentors held their breaths today as they sent their charges into another tough scrimmage drill. In the past week of strenuous training the Dukes have sent five players to the sidelines because of injuries.

LAKE SEBAGO, N. Y., Sept. 18.—Mal Stevens' N. Y. U. football squad loafed about camp today awaiting the arrival of supplies. A fire in the camp dressing room yesterday ruined uniforms and training equipment.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 18.—The Tigers today entered their third day of double sessions with three different teams beating the offensive in hard scrimmages. Larry Taylor, sophomore fullback aspirant, strained a shoulder muscle.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Sept. 18. Encouraged by the defensive play of his varsity line in practice sessions, Coach Bob Higgins today was casting about for capable ends to round out his Penn State forward wall. Both posts still remain to be filled with at least five candidates, none of whom have as yet won a regular end position, battling for the jobs.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Harry Fleischmann, Santa Monica, Cal., marksman, cracked 100 consecutive clay pigeons to take over the individual leadership in the all-guage event of the national skeet tourney at St. Louis Friday. His perfect shooting, plus a 99 by Grant Ilseng of Fresno, Cal., and help from team mates gave the Los Angeles-Santa Monica quintet the team advantage after the first of three days in which the major events are contested. The team score was 485.

Dominion Grattan, owned by Paul Powser, won the free-for-all at the Reading, Pa., Fair yesterday, taking all three heats, the fastest mile being clocked in 2:05, the last quarter of which was run in 30 seconds. Hal Cochato, owned by Leo McNamara, record 2:08 over a mile track, won the two year lod pace in two straight heats. Arthur Azoff took the 2:24 trot in 2:11 ½ and the 2:16 trot went to Calumet Evely in straight heats in 2:07.

Jimmy Braddock reported at New York yesterday he was virtually cured of arthritis....Jockey George Seabo, hurt a leg and shoulder when thrown from Bi-Swing at Pawtucket, R. I. Friday....H. D. Maxwell won the Clarksburg, W. Va., golf club title from Fred Chamberlaine, four up and three to go....Eunice Dean, San Antonio, beat Cecilla Riegel, Philadelphia in the semi-finals of the women's Philadelphia district net play, 6-0, 6-8, 6-1....Lee Sheppard and Sammy Angott will fight a return bout at Pittsburgh, September 28. There were 11 knockdowns in their last scrap. Jimmie Dunn manages Sheppard.

Weight Galore In Grover Camp

Head Coach Bill Amos Not Bothered By Lack Of Weight On His Squad

GROVE CITY, Sept. 18.—More than 55 candidates are registered for the Crimson football squad, but due to entrance examinations, details of registration and class assignments, the first week's football work has been of little benefit, Head Coach Bill Amos said today. The Crimson mentor is unable yet to assay the quality of his new material, but reports that weight, the lack of which has been a serious handicap in his four years here, will not be the problem it has been.

A heavy line, and more punch in the backfield, is indicated in Amos' preliminary appraisal. As usual, under the "amateur" policy, the candidates include no high school stars, and only a few with previous experience, but most of the veterans are hefty, and it seems that a period of midget Grove City teams is ending.

Coach Amos faces a difficult task in getting his squad into condition for the opener October 3. It seems probable that several veterans will be shifted to other positions, and with few exceptions the starting lineup will be new in their positions. The shifts were decided upon when a wealth of linemen appeared, making it possible to change ends and guards to backfield candidates.

Bessemer-Firemen Ready For Series

First Game Of Champion Series At Bessemer Field On Saturday

Game To Start At 3 P. M. Both Teams Are Confident Of Victory

It may be football in New Castle that occupies the tea-table gossip, but out Bessemer way, it is still baseball, and what baseball. The Bessemer team, Lawrence County league champions will play the Sixth Ward Firemen of New Castle, a series of games for the county championship. The first game is set for Saturday afternoon at the Bessemer Field at 3 p. m. E. S. T.

James W. Martin, manager of the Bessemer team and Joseph B. Zeigler have engaged in a newspaper controversy for the past several days and the series is the outcome of lots of bragging and boasting. The series should be one of the best the county has ever seen. Certainly there is interest galore in the impending games.

Announce Pitchers

Martin said today "I intend to pitch either Synder or Hravtine in the first game at Bessemer on Saturday and save my ace "Dick" Nord for the second game at Lee Avenue Field Sunday."

Zeigler will counter with either Hill or Huston on Saturday and may save Dick Witherow for Sunday. However, Shorty Thornton is going to figure in this series and it may be Thornton on Saturday at Bessemer.

"Any way we are going after three straight in this series" was the way Zeigler put it. The Firemen had a practice session last night and we looked awfully good. We will be ready to give the fans a real series" said Zeigler and Martin thinks the same way.

Nord To Pitch

"Dick Nord by the way," says Martin has pitched 16 consecutive innings without a run being scored on him.

"Nord should make the Firemen dizzy Sunday looking at his curve ball. Cleveland can have their Bob Feller, but Bessemer will ride with Nord any time," was more of the Martin philosophy.

Well, folks, anyway you take it this series is going to be the "berries" and you had better plan to attend the games if you like baseball, because from where we sit, it looks like a "Little World Series" with all the trimmings.

Sunday At Lee Avenue

The game Sunday at Lee avenue will start at 3 o'clock. The space is limited, so get there early if you want to see the goings on.

Bessemer is on fast time, the game will start at 3 o'clock, New Castle time.

Leo W. Hill president of the Lawrence County Umpire's Association will pick the umpires for the series out of the following list—McIntyre, Keller, Henry, Price, Augustine and Dunn.

The Firemen claim the independent championship of New Castle and rightfully so, having defeated Ryantown in a series and other fast teams such as P. N. A., Lawrence Indies and others. In the games with county league teams the Firemen have been very successful defeating West Pittsburg, Hillsville and Wampum in games recently.

Twenty Years Ago, Butler Kept N. C. From Title Play

Jim Vogan, former New Castle High star end, called up today to tell us that 20 years ago this fall in 1916, B. R. (before radios) that Butler High School football team kept New Castle from playing for the W. P. I. A. L championship at Forbes Field in Pittsburgh by a 6-6 tie battle here.

New Castle led up until the final few moments of the game, and then Butler started an offense that carried the ball down near the goal line, from about the four yard line, one of the Butler men fumbled and the ball rolled over the goal line, and a Butler man fell on it for a touchdown. There was considerable consternation in the New Castle camp. All victories for the season and here in the final game a tie with a few moments to go.

Those on the New Castle High team at the time, (20 years ago) were Dr. W. W. Horner, who by the way was a slick quarterback, Jim Vogan and Walt Vogan on the ends, Scoots Nelson and John Deep on the guards, Sam Richards and Harvey Harman at the tackles, and Fred Alexander at center.

The backfield was Horner, Davey Hoskins, Lawrence Thompson and Orr. The game was played at Cascade Park field (then quite a football layout).

Nonpariel Shoot Carded Saturday

Members of the Nonpariel Rifle club will hold a high-powered rifle shoot at the East Brook range starting at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon. it was announced by Karl Rohrer today. The shoot is open to all members of the club and their friends. A big turnout would be gratifying.

All-American Timber Is Being Counted On By Pitt, Tech, Dukes

By FRANCIS E. KIELY
International News Service Sports Writer

PITTCBURGH, Pa., Sept. 18.—With the 1936 football season close at hand, the All-American prospects again begin cropping up, and today a casual check-up reveals a number of pre-season luminaries from the "Smoky City" and vicinity ready to make their bid.

Each school in this section has its respective standout at this writing, but as the season progresses many others will crop up and probably outshine the stars of last season, who now, naturally, are seeded.

Pitt Has Two

Pitt has little Bobby Larue, who tips the scales around 155 pounds, is fast and shifty. Last year he was mentioned by many All-America raters and this year is expected to carry the blue and gold to a prominent position. Also, in "Biff" Glassford, a senior guard, the Panthers have a man who will require much consideration when the plumes are handed out.

Within the bounds of Schenley Park, Carnegie Tech's student body is singing the praises of Nestor Henrion, who last year was rated the best linesman and most valuable player in the city. Too, the preseason dope from the Skibo coaches is that "Whitey" Lee, a sophomore fullback, will rate with the top-notchers.

Basrak Rated

Duquesne's Night Riders will tell you that in Mike Basrak they have the best center in the country. Elmer Layden, now coach of the Notre Dame teams, was varsity coach when Mike was a freshman at Duquesne, but even then Basrak was such a standout that he drew the praise of the one-time "fourth-horseman."

Washington and Jefferson will sport real class in fullback John McBurney, a fine ball toter. McBurney, last year, was one of the few sonsolations on a so-so squad. Mike Rosso, another fine back, is expected to make a strong bid for eastern sectional honors.

Waynesburg college has two stars who may via for All-American—but certainly sectional—honors this year in Capt. Joe McCune, a stellar linesman, and Arnold Koepke, the Yellow Jackets' field general. The latter is rated one of the best punters in the east.

A summary shows that these, along with many others, will keep their opponents stepping. Teams from almost every section of the country, with the possible exception of the far west, will meet Pittsburgh and vicinity schools. The theme song of these contests, to hear the boys tell it, will be "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes."

Cardinals And Cubs To Battle

By LAWTON CARVER
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—All the Giants have to do now is stand still and await the outcome of the Cards-Cubs series, opening today at Chicago.

The second place Cards and the third place Cubs are to play four games in the current set and two more later on, but by the time they get around to that last brace the pennant race should be history.

The Giants idle today, holding a five game edge in the National League and will swing back into action tomorrow against the Dodgers.

Giants Gain

Pounding out 23 hits against a veritable brigade of second string pitching talent, the Giants swamped the Dodgers yesterday, 17 to 3, with Gabler turning in the victory. The highlight of the game was Hank Leiber's homer with the bases loaded. Leiber added a pair of doubles and Gabler hit two more.

In the only other National League game, the Pirates made 22 hits and beat the Reds, 14 to 10.

The only games in the American League ended in identical scores, the Brown's beating the White Sox, 5 to 2 on Knott's pitching and the Tigers taking the Indians by the same score on Wade's twirling.

Hubbell Praised As Great Hurler

Believe Hubbell Will Win Three Games In Coming World's Series

TRAYNOR PAYS TERRY CREDIT

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer
(Copyright, 1936, By International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 18—The two most mooted questions in the sports world today are:

(1) Can Carl Hubbell beat the Yanks? and (2) what has this guy Hubbell got anyway?

Only time can surely answer the first one. However, the consensus among ball players is that he can and will—once surely, twice probably, and perhaps even three times if the Giants find it necessary to call on him that often.

There seems to be a widespread belief that the wiry lefthander has nothing but a screw ball. Those that think so insist if it were not for this so-called freak delivery, the Hub couldn't win.

Praised By Terry

This viewpoint is a joke among ball players, as I kuickly discovered when I put the question to them: "What has Hub got?"

The laconic Mel Ott said simply: "The guy's got everything."

That was conclusive enough but I wanted something more definite, so I put the same query to the terse Bill Terry: and there's how the manager of the impending National League champions answered it:

"What's he got? Nothing except the best screw ball anybody ever threw; the best curve ball in this league, a corking fast ball, 100 percent control, a perfect disposition, a great competitive temperament, a perfect knowledge of the hitters and the heart of a lion."

Bill grinned wryly and added: "Outside of that he hasn't got a thing."

That, too, seemed sufficiently conclusive, but I wanted more detail so I called on Hub's catcher, Gus Mancuso, who is one of the brainiest lads in the game: "What," I repeated, "has Hub got?"

"Well," laughed Gus, "He's got about all he'll ever need. He must had had to win 24 games.

Fast Screwball

"He doesn't use that screwball as much as you might think. Maybe, on the average, only once in every three or four pitches, and mostly against right hand hitters. It breaks down and away from a right hander. He can throw it fast or he can use it as a change of pace.. But no matter how he throws it, it's plenty tough.

"And he feeds the lefthanders that curve and don't let anybody tell you it isn't about the best curve in the league. It's a downer, and take it from he, it's a honey.

"He may not look so fast from the grandstand, but actually he's very fast. In fact, outside of Dizzy Dean an Van Mungo, his high hard one's just about as good as anybody's."

That seemed all conclusive enough. Still, Ott, Terry and Mancuso were his buddies. Would his opponents think as highly of him? I quickly discovered that, if anything, the Pirates, for instance, thought more of him than the Giants. I popped the question to Pie Traynor, manager of the Pirates: "What's Hub got?"

Gives Terry Credit

"He's got too darned much for us or anybody else," grinned Pie. "And here's an angle on that bird I'll bet has never been written. Did you know he never really became a great pitcher until Terry took him over after McGraw quit?

"Look up the figures and I'm sure you'll find I'm correct. McGraw used to make him throw that screwball all the time and, of course, he wasn't half as effective doing that as he is now when he mixes 'em up. Why, nobody knew Hub had a fast ball or a curve until Terry took charge and let him pitch his own game. Yeh, you can say for me, Hub's got everything and I wish I had him."

Temple To Open Eastern Season

Meets St. Joseph's College In Game At Philadelphia, Tonight

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18.—Getting away to an earlier start than usual, intercollegiate football draws aside the curtain here tonight when Pop Warner's Temple university eleven meets a local rival in St. Joseph's college under the flood lights at Temple stadium.

Barring inclement weather, a crowd of close to 20,000 is expected to witness the inaugural contest of the 1936 campaign.

Considered only a warm-up for Temple's 11-game schedule, the battle may find Warner's team hard-pressed to register a decisive victory as St. Joe's has a stronger machine this season, while the Owls have suffered through the loss of several stars.

Neither Warner nor Heinie Miller, coach of St. Joe's, would predict victory for their team. Both declare they are looking forward to a tight game.

Simms To Battle Haynes At Cleveland

Jimmie Dunn of Cleveland, manager of Eddie Simms, was here last night. He said Simms has been matched to fight Leroy Haynes at Cleveland. Simms has beaten Al Ettore who won three times over Hayes. However, New York judges gave Jack Trammel a decision over Simms, Trammel beat Haynes.

THUMP! THUMP!

Goodman Faces Johnny Fischer In Semi-Final

Voigt Will Meet Jock McLean Of England In Other Amateur Semi-Final

SCOTTY CAMPBELL IS ELIMINATED

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor.

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., Sept. 18.—Just as though old Dave Belasco had come back from the shadows to stage-manage the show, the national amateur golf championship was to go into an ultra-theatrical semi-final round today between four consummate wasters of all the tricks a bag of clubs can hold.

Johnny Goodman, former open champion, and Johnny Fischer, rabid contender through these several years, will meet in one match. In the other, the deceptively staid George Voigt is to play Jock McLean of Scotland, now generally hailed as the best amateur Great Britain has produced in a generation. Destiny, indeed, couldn't have done better by the event if it had pulled this program out of the hat on Monday last—and sardonically waited for a week of heartbreak to come to an ordained head. Perhaps it did.

Campbell Defeated

Seldom, anyhow, does a championship provide a climax so appropriate. Four Walker cup men in the semi-final bracket, three from America and one from abroad, to give the thing just the correct touch of internationalism.

Moreover, there were five Walker cup men in the quarter finals yesterday, but fate put the finger on Scotty Campbell in the Voight match, the man from the northwest passing away with a 41 to the turn after almost getting an eagle on the first hole.

It should have produced the best golf of the round. Instead it produced the worst. Goodman and Fischer each tossed a par 37 at Ray Billows and Russell Martin respectively; whereas, the quiet but impressive McLean showed a 36 to J. F. Riddell, who in turn had a grim 37 as further tribute to his well recognized tenacity.

Two Under Par.

McLean, indeed, was two under par for 31 holes during two victories yesterday for the best performance of the last 24 hours. He said last night that he wanted to win, not so much for himself as for the prestige of British golf, and while this may be, the fact is that, either way, he probably will go to the finals.

For today the tournament was to abandon its dot-and-dash technique of the 18-hole route and go for the full 36, a distance at which the somewhat elderly Mr. Voigt hardly figures to be comfortable.

Third Game Of Series Sunday

The third game of the five-game series between the Cold Rolls and the Brights Hot Mill for the Carnegie-Illinois Steel softball league championship will be played Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Flats field.

The Cold Rolls have two games to their credit in the series and a victory on Sunday will give them the title. The Brights face the task of winning three in a row to hold up the record last year as the Fankhouser team.

The game will be handled by Tex Richards and Keith Van Fossan, two very fine umpires.

Marcellas Ready For Grid Season

Marcellas will be back on the football field this year with a fast team, it was announced today by Coach Gumbert Yerage. The team held a first meeting of the year at the home of "Cacki" DeFelice and discussed the coming grid season.

Yerage was elected as coach of the team and "Cotton" Gennock was named as quarterback and captain of the team. Those on the team from last year are: Gennock, Caiazza, Conglose, Reda, Cozza and Pagley. The new men will be G. Lamorella, Rozzi, Terrei, Mastern, Burelli, Amobile, Ambrose and Maielle. The first practice is this afternoon at 4 o'clock at Colonial field on the south side.

Braddock Will Take It Easy

Will Meet Three "Set-Ups" Prior To Climbing Into Ring With Schmeling

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—James J. Braddock, heavyweight champion of the world, will engage in three no-decision fights before defending his title against Max Schmeling next summer.

This bland announcement from the lips of Braddock's manager, Joe Gould, caused no little excitement among the cauliflower gentry along Broadway today.

Joe plans to have Jim fight in Jersey City in January, in Atlantic City on Washington's birthday and in Miami sometime in March.

His opponents have not yet been selected but Joe says they will be of the tune-up or push-over variety.

Sweet Charity

All three fights will be the name of and for the sake of sweet charity and will have the political blessing—according to Gould—of Mayor Hague in Jersey City, and the power that be in Atlantic City and Miami.

Asked how he was going to avoid legal entanglements over his contract to fight Schmeling, Gould explained that his contract with Madison Square Garden calls for Braddock "to make the first defense of his title for the Garden." "But," added Joe, "these will not be title fights. The only way anybody could lift Jim's title would be by a knockout and it's a cinch I'm not going to let him fight anybody that has a chance to stop him."

Joe said somebody like Steve Dudas would be selected as Braddock's first opponent, "and Steve couldn't knock me out."

Stocks Continue To Forge Ahead, Leaders Up One To Three Points

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service
Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Stocks continued to forge ahead in late dealings today with gains in pivotal leaders of from one to more than three points.

Motors, steels, rails, rubbers, coppers and oils were all actively higher.

Chrysler climbed close to three points. General Motors moved up about a point, while Nash and Studebaker chalked up large fractional gains.

Other large gainers included Twin City Rapid Transit preferred, J. I. Case and Westinghouse, each up about three points, American Smelting up two, and Allied Chemical, Union Carbide, Corn Products, American Can and Lee Rubber, all of which were close to two points above last night's closings.

U. S. Steel, Youngstown and Bethlehem in the steels, and International Nickel and Kennecott in the coppers gained more than a point, the last two reaching new peaks for the year.

Bonds were generally firm, led by industrials. Cotton was little changed, while grains were up as much as a cent a bushel.

Find House Where Santa Claus Lived Filled With Toys

Strange Story Is Revealed When Melbourne Aged Man Dies

(International News Service)

MELBOURNE — Brightly-colored toys piled four and five feet high in every room of a two-story house in Cardigan Street, Carlton, a Melbourne suburb, were found by police when the occupant of the house died.

Dolls, toy motorcars, tricycles, bangles, drums, trumpets and hundreds of other toys were spread all over the floors, heaped on shelves, and even tied to the lights and bannisters.

Behind this discovery is a strange story.

Known to most Carlton children as "Santa Claus", an old man, with long hair and flowing beard, had occupied the house for many years.

A long time ago he made a promise that he would have a toy for every child in Carlton at Christmas. Year by year he repeated the promise, but apparently was afraid there would not be toys for all.

Year by year he made no distribution, but added to his collection until all the floor space was occupied by toys, hundreds of which were trampled upon as he walked from room to room. It was impossible to enter any room without treading on toys. The only free space in the house was three square feet beside the stove where he cooked and ate his meals. And, to reach this oasis, it was necessary to clamber over piles of toys.

Now the collection is being guarded by police who are awaiting instructions as to its disposal.

JAPANESE BEETLES HAVE HARD SLEDDING

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA—While Japanese beetles have greatly increased in York, Lancaster, Chester, Lebanon and other cities, they have decreased markedly in numbers here this year, a department of agriculture survey has disclosed.

Philadelphia's cold January and February weather was believed responsible for the deaths of thousands of the pests last winter. Department officials estimate the bugs were only one-tenth as bad this year as last.
